ROOSEVELT MOVES TO CALL 50,000 IN NATIONAL GUARD FOR SERVICE

U. S. Indicts Cutcliffe On Income Tax Counts

'Bob' Hogg Sr. Also Charged With Violations

Federal Grand Jury Returns Seven Counts Against Pair.

Walter Cutcliffe, former bootlegger, bug operator and once business associate of Eddie Guyol, slain lottery racketeer, and who has been given several paroles by Governor Rivers, was indicted along with R. H. "Bob" Hogg Sr. yesterday afternoon by the federal grand jury on charges of income tax evasion.

The indictment against Cutcliffe has four counts and accuses him of evading payment of income taxes totaling $23,591.85 on an alleged income of $177,390.25 during the years 1934 to 1937.

Hogg was indicted on three counts, charging he had evaded payment of $19,265.61 in the years 1934, 1935 and 1936, during which time the government alleges his income was $136,975.54. Bonds of $5,000 were assessed yesterday against each of the defendants.

Records show Cutcliffe to be 40 years old and a native of Birmingham. He resides at 981 Club drive here.

He has a long record in connection with the numbers racket here, with many heavy fines and suspended sentences on court records.

He has a federal court record for violations of the prohibition act prior to 1930. Following that he was arrested on March 2, 1932, for violation of the prohibition act and received a 15-month sentence.

In September, 1933, when the numbers racket was gaining a heavy foothold in Atlanta, Cutcliffe was arrested on a lottery charge. At that time he was fined $1,000 and given a 12 months' suspended sentence. Following that, in April of 1934, he again was convicted and received 12 months and a fine of $1,000.

One year later, in April of 1935, he again ran afoul of the law and was convicted on an additional lottery charge. He again was fined $1,000 in Fulton criminal court, and given an additional 12 months' suspended sentence to follow the previous sentence. In the same month he was fined $250 on a speeding charge, but the fine was reduced to $150 and paid.

In the fall of 1937, Cutcliffe entered a plea of guilty to operating a lottery and was given another suspended sentence of five years. He subsequently was granted a pardon from the five-year suspended sentence by Governor Rivers.

The indictment returned against Cutcliffe charges in the first count

Democrat Body Adopts 'Bonus' Delegate Plan; Rivers Loses

Compromise Grants Added Delegate to States Casting Majority for Presidential Nominee; F.D.R. Says He Won't Attend Convention.

CHICAGO, July 12.—(AP)—The Democratic national committee, after a stiff fight between northern and southern states, today adopted a compromise delegate "bonus" plan granting an additional delegate at-large to future national conventions to each state casting a majority for the party's presidential nominee.

Each state is now permitted four delegates at large and two for each congressional district.

In Washington, meanwhile, President Roosevelt said at a press conference he definitely would not go to Chicago to attend the Democratic convention but again he avoided every question designed to bring about a disclosure of his third-term stand.

Mr. Roosevelt's hearers interpreted his flat statement that he would not go to Chicago to mean that not only would he not be there during the convention but also that he would not go there, in event of a draft nomination, to make an acceptance speech.

Compromise Plan.

The compromise "bonus" plan, proposed by the subcommittee headed by Senator Green, of Rhode Island, and subject to approval by the convention rules committee and the convention itself, does not affect district delegate representation.

It won by a voice vote over a substitute suggested by Governor Rivers of Georgia authorizing an additional three delegates at large from each state going Democratic in a presidential election, one delegate from each congressional district and one additional for each district electing a Democratic congressman or casting at least 15,000 votes for the Democratic candidate.

This substitute was known as the "Alabama" plan and was designed to recompense the heavily Democratic southern states for loss of veto power in choosing presidential candidates through abolition of the two-thirds nominating rule.

Cuts Delegates.

The Green plan also cuts down the number of delegates from Alaska and Hawaii from six to three in future conventions and denies delegate representation to the Philippines and the Canal Zone.

The Canal Zone has six at the convention starting Monday and the Philippines none.

Representatives of the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico successfully fought a reduction in their six-member delegation. The Virgin islands, which now has two, also was undisturbed.

Green, in offering his subcommittee compromise, said the group turned down the Rivers and other plans because the current census would change state representation in the United States house of representatives before the 1944 convention, and it was deemed wise to await the result of the new population count.

He said this might increase delegate representation from southern and other states, since their number is based on population and house membership. Green also argued that many party members felt if any group of states were to be given a delegate bonus, instead of the nation as a whole, it should go to so-called "doubtful" states, rather than those of the south, which vote Democratic year after year.

More Liberal.

Rivers said his proposal was more liberal and offered an incentive to states and districts not now Democratic to go that way.

"While we have had smooth sailing in recent years," Rivers asserted, "the time may come when we will have to put a premium on party loyalty."

Speaking for the Green plan were John B. Kelly, of Pennsylvania, who said one more delegate at large was "sufficient for these traditional (southern) states; Edward J. Flynn, New York; Mrs. Lucretia Grady, California; James A. Marsh, Colorado, and Representative A. D. Folger, North Carolina, the last two members of the Green subcommittee.

Joining Rivers were Olin D. Johnston, South Carolina; Mrs. Hortense K. Wells, Florida; Mrs. Roland B. Howell, Louisiana, and Marion Rushton, Alabama.

DALLAS, Texas, July 12.—(AP) Guy Warren, of Corpus Christi, Texas, chairman of the Nominate Willkie Democrats, said today the name of the Republican presidential nominee definitely would be presented to the national Democratic convention in Chicago.

Warren left for Chicago to establish his organization's convention headquarters in a hotel.

"Since organizing," he said before his departure, "we have received more than 7,000 letters from lifelong Democrats from Maine to California pledging their support.

72 Delegates Leave Today For Convention

Georgia Messengers Intend To Cast Unit Vote for Roosevelt.

By LUKE GREENE.

Amid the excitement usually accompanying a departing delegation, Georgia's 72 Democratic messengers and scores of party followers will steam out of the Union Station aboard the "Georgia Special" at 4 o'clock this afternoon bound for the Chicago Democratic national convention and what they confidently expect to be one of the most epochal events in Democratic history.

The messengers will begin assembling at the station at 3:30 o'clock. The women will be well represented. There will be hurried good-byes. There will be last-minute directions. There will be talk of the big time that lies ahead in the convention city. It will be a moment to which Georgia Democrats have been looking forward for many months.

They Want F. D. R.

As the special train puffs out of the station and members of the party stand on the rear platform waving a last farewell, it is highly probable that a cheer will go up for President Franklin D. Roosevelt, for the Georgia delegation will leave with the sole intention of casting their vote as a unit for the man who steered the ship of state for the past eight years.

The delegates would talk only of Roosevelt yesterday as they prepared for the big event. The suggestion that any other Democrat might be nominated seems entirely foreign to them. Only by much enticing could they be coaxed out on a limb long enough to say they would even consider a second choice.

No Second Choice.

But, even if the President should decline the nomination, most of them say they would be for the man he would name. There seems to be no second choice, unless the President has a part in the selection.

When asked to comment on the nomination, the delegates plainly state their feelings about the President, but finally add that they would look kindly toward Cordell Hull.

L. W. (Chip) Robert, secretary of the Democratic National Convention, in a telephone conversation from Chicago to a friend in Atlanta yesterday, said talk of

Nazis Continue Deadly Raids Over Britain

10 German Bombers Downed; More U-Boat Successes Claimed.

By The Associated Press.

Germany's air might assailed Great Britain from Scotland to the southeast coast almost without pause yesterday, and Germany's military leaders claimed huge successes in the Nazi U-boat campaign to starve the British into submission.

Although 11 Nazi bombers were reported brought down by Britain's defenses, the swastika-marked raiders carried on their attacks.

Retailers See 8 to 10 Per Cent Business Increase Here in Fall

Nation's July Factory Activity Is Greatest in Ten Years.

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)—Factory activity this week held around the highest July levels in 10 years as prospective orders for defense construction and equipment piled up in Washington.

Fed by a steady inflow of buying to accumulate reserve stocks before the defense program begins to occupy industry, steel mills quickly restored operating rates to the late June pace, before the curtailment for the Fourth of July week.

Further gains in engineering construction contracts, partly arising from expansion of shipbuilding, public utility and munitions plants, marked preparations for the anticipated boom in war industry under stimulus of the administration's proposed $10,000,000,000 defense spending.

Private heavy construction contracts for the week ended Wednesday, according to Engineering News-Record, totaled $34,012,000, about double the figure for the like 1939 period.

The upswing in residential building continued to gain ground, climbing to the best figure in a decade. The Associated Press index of home construction rose to a new peak for the year and was well ahead of the comparable figure a year ago.

Reviving business activity spread to Wall street as the market for new corporate financing suddenly opened up after a long period of stagnation. Investment bankers successfully floated $124,000,000 in new issues, the biggest weekly total in months.

Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., estimated retail trade throughout the country ranged 3 to 8 per cent above comparable figures a year ago. The agency said 10 per cent more buyers than a year ago had appeared at wholesale apparel markets.

(Georgia towns report business increases. Story on Page 3.)

More Atlanta Buyers Have Been Sent Out Than Ever Before.

An eight to ten per cent increase in retail business here this fall over last was freely predicted by Atlanta's retail merchants yesterday.

They are backing their prediction with action. More buyers are being sent to the style markets, larger orders are being placed and plans are under way to make it even easier for Atlantans to purchase the new fall and winter styles, most of which have been designed by American stylists who are reported by buyers to have outdone themselves in elaborate and striking creations to prove the women's market hasn't suffered from the loss of French designers.

In the Atlanta wholesale market, there is similar increased activity. The semi-annual Atlanta Style and Market Show is still nearly a month away, but more buyers from southeastern cities than ever before are expected to attend this year, indicating increased business throughout this section.

A spirit of optimism prevails among the city's big merchants. While Atlanta is not a big war industry town, it is a distributing center and as prosperity reaches the sections aided by the war de-

Defense Step May Include Georgia Units

Approval by Congress Necessary; Active Duty for Year Favored.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—A decision to call about 50,000 National Guardsmen to camps as soon as possible for perhaps a year's intensive training was reached today by President Roosevelt and his new Secretary of War, Henry L. Stimson.

The decision is contingent upon approval by congress, which would have to authorize the unprecedented peacetime step. The authority will be asked when congress reconvenes after the Democratic national convention.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, announced the decision and said that four divisions, seven antiaircraft regiments, and an undetermined number of harbor defense regiments would be called.

Division From South.

One division, he said, will come from New York and New Jersey, a second from Tennessee, the Carolinas and Georgia, a third from New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arizona and Colorado, and the fourth from Oregon, Washington, Montana and Idaho.

Once their training is completed, he said, consideration will be given to the question of extending the training to other guard units.

The training will be designed to familiarize the guardsmen with modern weapons and military practices and is expected also to fit them for training the thousands of conscripts who will be called to service if congress enacts a compulsory military training law.

Tentative Selection.

The divisions mentioned by Early are the 44th, 30th, 45th and 41st. A War Department spokesman said, however, that their selection for training was entirely tentative.

If congress approves the plan, he said, the question of which units to call will be re-examined in the light of facilities available at that time.

For instance, he explained, the 30th division normally would train at Camp Jackson, S. C., but the regular army's training might not permit use of that post. In that event, he said, a different division might be selected.

(Since Georgia National Guard troops are members of the 30th division, inability to train at Camp Jackson might prevent Georgia troops from being called out.)

Early declared he could not say how long a training period would be provided, but it was learned that the War Department's recommendations called for a year.

Each national guard division has a strength of 608 officers, nine warrant officers and 9,400 men.

Augment Divisions.

This is about 3,000 men and 78 officers under authorized peace strength and officials anticipated the divisions summoned to active duty would be augmented.

Guard officers understood the procedure would be first to recruit the divisions to peace strength, retain them at their home stations for about 10 days and then move the various units to near-by posts for training under canvas.

General Marshall told the senate committee that he personally favored an immediate order for all the nation's 230,000 citizen-soldiers to don their uniforms.

The committee has before it the Burke-Wadsworth training bill providing for registration and selective training of men between the ages of 18 and 65.

Marshall recommended that men in training get regular army pay —a minimum of $21 a month instead of $5 as provided in the bill —and that the training period be at least one year rather than eight months.

Colonel H. L. Twaddle, army training expert, told the committee 400,000 conscripts could be brought into training by October 1 if congress enacted the bill without delay.

He figured on another 400,000 by next April and 600,000 additional by October of next year.

(5,100 Georgia guardsmen are ready for call. Story on Page 2.)

Native of Marietta Is Elected To Top Post in Radio's NBC

Niles Trammell Named President by Board of Directors.

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)—Election of radio veteran Niles Trammell, formerly of Chicago, as the third president of the National Broadcasting Company was effected by the board of directors today. He succeeds Major Lenox R. Lohr, resigned to become president of the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry.

Trammell was born in Marietta, Ga., July 6, 1894. He left high school to accept a teller's post in his home town bank, and later attended Sewanee University, in Tennessee, where he remained three years.

He was married to the former Elizabeth Ruff, of Greensburg, Pa., in 1933.

Trammell's elevation from executive vice president had been forecast almost since the announcement on June 7 of Lohr's resignation. Lohr, who had been president since 1936, returns to the city where he ran the Century of Progress Exposition in 1933 and 1934.

HEADS NBC—Niles Trammell, native Mariettan, yesterday was named president of the National Broadcasting Company.

Camacho Declared Winner in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, July 12.—(AP)—The Mexican Revolutionary party, administration political organization, announced tonight that complete returns from Sunday's presidential election gave its candidate, General Manuel Avila Camacho, a majority of 2,136,625 votes.

The party said Avila Camacho had received 2,265,199 votes, while the leading independent candidate, General Juan Andreu Almazan, a conservative, had received only 128,574.

Public Seeking Best in Values, Says Dameron

Asserts Consumer Wants Maximum Return for Dollar.

People who once were solely obsessed with the problem of making more money today are more and more interested in seeing that the dollar they now earn goes farther—that for every dollar spent a dollar's worth of goods and service is received in exchange, Dr. Kenneth Dameron, professor of marketing at Ohio State University and one of the nation's leading authorities on consumer relations, said in an interview here yesterday.

Consumer education is becoming a greater and greater factor in American life, he pointed out, with schools and colleges, women's organizations and special "testing" agencies all turning their efforts to telling the man with the dollar how best it can be spent.

Some of these consumer education groups, Dr. Dameron pointed out, cannot be described as fair in their methods and their assumptions. There is a tendency on the part of some of them to create the erroneous impression that businessmen in the producing and selling end are by nature charlatans, ignoring the fact that in the final analysis it is the best product that gets most favorable public reception.

There is also a tendency on the part of some consumer educators, he said, to attack advertising, particularly national advertising, as an economic waste, an addition to the price of an article which the consumer must pay. This attitude, he pointed out, ignores the virtues of advertising as a means of increasing distribution, by which production is increased and price-per-article lowered.

CONSUMER AUTHORITY—Dr. Kenneth Dameron, left, above, professor of marketing at Ohio State University and one of the nation's leading authorities on consumer practices, told Atlanta advertising people yesterday that more than ever before the consumer is seeking education in how to get the most for his money. Nazis Continue Deadly Raids Over Britain

One of the most savage cost at least 10 lives in Scotland. Late last night the German raiders also visited Wales.

Only Adolf Hitler and his close associates are said to know when the full German war machine will be unleashed against the British, but Hitler's submarine commanders are losing no time in doing their utmost to halt the flow of food and war materials to the British Isles.

The German high command said that since the war with Britain began last September 3, Nazi naval and aerial arms have sunk 4,329,213 tons of "enemy merchant shipping space or shipping space usable to the enemy."

During the entire four years of the World War, Britain lost but 7,830,765 tons, and in London an authorized source said the German figure really was four times more than British losses up to July 1 in this war.

British bombers hammered back at the Germans in raids which cost three warplanes, but loosed bombs and machinegun bullets on a concentration of barges in German-held Boulogne, France, on enemy airdromes in Holland and on other objectives in Germany.

Selassie Recognized.

Indications of trouble for the Italians in Ethiopia were seen in the British recognition of Haile Selassie once again as emperor of the land wrested from him by the Italians in 1935-36. Ethiopian natives already are reported in arms against their Italian conquerors.

British and those Ethiopian forces opposed to Italian rule are to co-ordinate "all activities likely to damage the enemy's effort in north and east Africa and in Abyssinia (Ethiopia)," England announced.

Tens of thousands of Ethiopia's fierce but ill-armed warriors are in the field against Italy already.

Fighting between British and Italian troops in Africa continued. British soldiers besieged by the Italians at Moyale, on the Kenya-Ethiopian frontier, repaired their damages and held off the enemy. Other Britons, besieging Italian troops in the forts of Capuzzo and Maddelana on the Egyptian-Libyan frontier, cut off a pipe line supplying the forts with water.

French President Quits.

In newly totalitarian France, the last president of the third French republic, Albert Lebrun, and the old ministers handed their resignations to Premier Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, new chief of state. They were replaced by a new cabinet which, with the aged marshal, will rule France.

The marshal's first appointment was that of Pierre Laval as vice president. Laval, a former premier, long has advocated closer ties with Germany and Italy. Petain, 84 years old, officially designated Laval, 57 years old, as his eventual successor.

Petain named General Maximi Weygand, generalissimo of the Allied armies before France capitulated, as minister of defense, and Adrian Marquet, as minister of interior, a post he held in the last cabinet of Republican France. These three—Laval, General Weygand and Marquet, were said to be the key men of the new regime with Petain. Paul Baudoin was reappointed minister of foreign affairs.

Scotland Suffers.

In Nazi bombings of the British Isles, the most savage blows were struck at northeast Scotland.

By these new raids, a rough outline of the Nazi program seemed to emerge: a series of rotating attacks designed to hit every so often every section of the British Isles.

The Scottish fatalities were described ominously in the phrase, "as far as is known," and it was clear that the list of the dead and injured there might be much higher.

167 Slain in Three Weeks.

Unofficial tabulations of the slain in raids from June 18 up to last evening showed 167 deaths. Some 170 invading Nazi planes were indicated destroyed since the start of the war.

The raid on northeast Scotland produced one aftermath of some satisfaction to the British: it was declared that the Nazi raider which had dropped bombs "in various parts" of a town there had been headed off by British fighter planes and shot down.

The day's melancholy visitations began in early morning with the arrival of a Nazi squadron over the southwest coast.

Hull as a probable running mate for Roosevelt was decreasing.

He added, however, that there was some intimation that Cordell Hull and Jim Farley might form a Democratic slate in the event the President does not choose to run.

Headed by Major Clark Howell, chairman of the delegation, the Georgia party will establish headquarters at the Palmer House and the Stevens hotel in Chicago. The train is scheduled to arrive at 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

Georgians—other than delegates—who travel to the national Democratic convention in Chicago aboard the "Georgia Special" will be provided with tickets to the convention, Major Clark Howell, chairman of the state delegation, announced last night.

Awaiting the Georgians in the gaily decorated and highly keyed convention city will be many entertainment features. They will be given free passes to the ball park, the race tracks, and the art centers. There will be breakfasts and luncheons and dinners. There will be private parties and special functions for the women delegates.

More Representation.

Governor Rivers, who was already in Chicago yesterday attending pre-convention meetings, issued a statement favoring more representation for states that have remained loyal to the party.

"To maintain a policy of representation that favors doubtful states and penalizes loyal states points the party policy toward expediency instead of principle and tends to break down the party system of government," he said.

"Such a policy places the power of the party in the hands of those who shift their sails to catch every political breeze. The power of the party should be in the hands of those who are Democrats in principle and not Democrats simply when it best serves their selfish interests. I had rather descend in defeat with Democracy than rise to victory with Republicanism."

Dance Will Honor Reserve Officers

Atlanta chapter of the Quartermaster Association will hold a dance at the Fort McPherson Officers' Club tonight in honor of the 66 reserve officers of the quartermaster corps now in a two-week training period at the camp.

Forty of the officers will be inducted into the Atlanta chapter during the evening.

Colonel Ellis F. Altman, commanding the 407th quartermaster regiment, 82 Division, commanding officer of the camp, will be guest of honor. Major Rufus Boylan, regular army officer on duty at the camp, will be master of ceremonies, according to Captain John T. Moorhead, camp publicity officer.

Two Georgia Companies Given Navy Contracts

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP)—The Navy Department today made public the award of a number of contracts, including two to Georgia companies. They were:

Naval air station, Pensacola, Fla., for aviation facilities, to the Hardaway Contracting Company, Columbus, Ga., estimated cost, $4,000,000.

Naval air station, Jacksonville, Fla., aviation facilities, to the Duval Engineering and Contracting Company, of Jacksonville; George D. Auchter Company, of Jacksonville, and Batson-Cook Company, of West Point, Ga., estimated cost, $12,786,000.

Attend Mercer Course, Georgia Bankers Urged

Georgia bankers were urged yesterday by C. B. Golson, acting state superintendent of banks, to attend the second short course in banking at Mercer University at Macon next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Golson said the importance of maintaining export outlets for American products would be one of the major topics discussed. Among the instructors at the Georgia course will be Dr. Paul F. Cadman, economist of the American Bankers' Association, and Dr. William A. Irwin, educational director of the American Institute of Banking.

U. S. To Build Powder Plant At Louisville

Du Pont Will Operate Factory; Shore Defense Contracts Let.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP)—Authoritative sources today reported that arrangements had been made by the government for construction of a $30,000,000 smokeless powder plant at Louisville, Ky., with defense funds. It would be operated by the du Pont Powder Company.

Other developments bearing on the defense program were:

The navy awarded 23 contracts totaling $136,743,900, largely to strengthen shore defenses. Improved aviation facilities at island outposts and coast bases figured in most contracts.

President Roosevelt said that it was the administration's intention to maintain standards under the wage-hour law for work on the defense program.

It was disclosed that the army's mechanization plans include a force of 6,000 tanks, double the number now in service or on order. Several hundred will be huge monsters comparable to the 70-ton land battleships used by Germany.

Merchants See Retail Business Increase Here

fense program, it naturally will follow here.

Atlanta business last fall and throughout this year has led that of the rest of the nation, it was pointed out.

"Frankly, we are expecting a good business this fall," Meyer Regenstein said. "We've sent more buyers than before to the New York market and they report seeing the finest collection of styles, particularly in ensembles, than ever before. Another aid to good business for the fall is the making it easier for the customer to buy."

J. J. Doran said he wasn't expecting a business boom because Atlanta already had the best business record in the nation for 1940, but he anticipates "an 8 per cent increase" for this fall.

Robert Dorsen declared: "If the fall government spending means anything, the country should prosper. Atlanta is a distributing center, not a war industry town, so there will be no rapid increase. We are planning for a reasonable increase in business this fall. Say about 10 per cent, and we are hoping for better."

L. L. Austin, secretary of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association, said, "I am a conservative man, but believe everything points to a good business season this fall."

Ben H. Bach, president of the Atlanta Style and Market Show, said: "Prices are stiffening and that's an indication of business increase. The manufacturers here are even short of goods. Generally speaking for the wholesale garment industry, I'd say business probably will be better this fall than last. We have already been notified that more buyers than ever before are planning to attend the August style and market show. They are learning that Atlanta is a good place to buy. There are more manufacturers and wholesalers here now than ever before."

The second count charges that he returned a gross income of $18,280.30 for the year 1935 when he should have returned a gross income of $49,548.75, and that he paid a tax for 1935 of $1,258.89, when he should have paid a tax of $8,525.11.

Count three charges that he returned a gross income for the year 1936 of $18,150 when he should have returned a gross income of $54,849, and that he thereby evaded payment of the correct amount of tax of $10,405.15.

The fourth count charges that for 1937 he returned a gross income of $5,000, upon which he paid an income tax of $132, when his income was $36,025, upon which he should have paid an income tax of $5,304.35.

The indictment against Hogg charges in the first count that he returned for taxation in 1934 the sum of $20,000, upon which he paid a tax of $1,633, and that he should have returned a gross income of $37,547.68 and paid a tax of $5,409.92.

Second Count.

In the second count against Hogg he is charged with returning a gross income of $15,486.56 for the year 1935, when he should have returned a gross income of $47,058.73, thereby evading payment of the sum of $7,090.68.

The third count charges he returned for taxation for the year 1936 the sum of $17,419.75, when he should have returned $52,369.13, thereby evading payment of $8,398.01.

'Streamlined' Division Set Up At Fort Bragg

Unit To Have Strength of 8,000 Men in Peacetime.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—Creation of a ninth "streamlined" division was announced today by the War Department along with organization of numerous other new units made possible by a prospective increase of 55,000 men in the regular army's strength.

The ninth division's headquarters will be at Fort Bragg, N. C. It will have a peace strength of about 8,000.

More than three score other organizations also were ordered created. Seventeen units of more than 5,000 men will be composed of Negro troops.

The War Department also announced details concerning a new armored corps of two divisions, which will have 1,100 officers and approximately 17,500 enlisted men. To equip the corps, 400 light and 18 medium tanks and about 175 scout cars are immediately available.

Abit Nix Calls Camp Betrayer Of Roosevelt

Gubernatorial Aspirant Answers Resolution Attacking His Candidacy

Abit Nix, of Athens, last night answered Georgia's New Deal Democrats who Thursday denounced Nix's candidacy for Governor in a manner which implied they intended to throw their strength to Eugene Talmadge.

Nix, in a radio address in which he indorsed Roosevelt for a third term, aimed his attack directly at Lawrence Camp, New Deal candidate for the senate against Talmadge in 1938.

"We saw in today's papers where Mr. Lawrence Camp, the United States district attorney and the man who ran for the senate in 1938 in the name of Roosevelt liberalism is dropping the flag he carried and is going over to the enemy before the first shot is fired.

". . . We have witnessed the betrayal of Roosevelt liberalism and Democratic principles by a man from whom thousands of Georgians had every right to expect a steadfast and unyielding loyalty to the principles in which he claimed to believe.

President's Worst Enemy."

"When I call Talmadge the President's worst enemy," Nix added, "I do not ask you to take my estimate of how disloyal he has been to the Roosevelt administration. I give you the estimate of the Democratic administration itself, through its recognized spokesman, the chairman of the national Democratic executive committee." (James A. Farley).

Nix then read a statement in which the executive committee chairman said:

"'A number of very wealthy people who hated Roosevelt, according to what seemed to us reliable information, were ready to put up the cash for the Louisiana senator (Huey Long) if he wanted it, in the hope that his candidacy would split the Democratic party. It would be playing with fire for them to finance such a scheme, but they later attempted it with other third party aspirants, namely Governor Eugene Talmadge of Georgia.

Cites Convention.

"'A senate committee revealed that thousands of dollars were pumped into the Grass Roots convention at Macon, Ga., organized by Talmadge, and most of the money came from prominent members of the Liberty League and Wall street operators.'

"This then," Nix resumed, "is the man whom Lawrence Camp wants you to make Governor of Georgia so that he can once more fight our President at time when every official in the United States must be free of all taint of treachery to President Roosevelt, because the very life of our nation is at stake.

Party Called Vital.

"I do not believe Georgia will follow Lawrence Camp into the arms of Eugene Talmadge. I do not believe Franklin D. Roosevelt can be sold out in Georgia. I do not believe that Georgia intends to be governed by the Quislings or the Lavals.

"The Democratic convention which meets at Chicago July 15 will be the most important assemblage that has been held in this country since the birth of the union. . . . Whatever is done at that convention will do more to determine the future existence of our nation than any event since the United States became a nation.

Hopes F. D. R. Will Run.

"A new foreign policy in the light of the new world is in the making. . . . The convention must adopt a program and nominate candidates for President and vice president who will be the voice of America—the new America. I hope President Roosevelt will accept the nomination and I believe he will.

"At a time like this the people must, and I believe they will, elect men to office who see eye to eye with Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"Yet there are some who even now, even before the fight has begun for the re-election of Roosevelt, who are deserting to the enemy, Mr. Lawrence Camp."

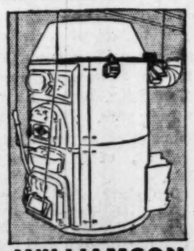

Ship Crew Flees Mysterious Fire

ASTORIA, Ore., July 12.—(AP)—Destruction of the 1,100-ton Greek steamer, Hellenic Skipper, by a mysterious fire last Wednesday was reported today by 21 members of the crew. No lives were lost.

First Mate Aris Catselides said the fire broke out at 8 o'clock in the morning as the Honolulu-bound freighter plowed through heavy seas 130 miles out of Aberdeen, Wash.

The crew put off in a lifeboat and made its way through dense fog and high waves, without a compass to near the Oregon coast. A troller took them in tow and later a United States coast guard motor lifeboat brought the survivors, one of them badly burned, to Astoria.

'Vibrant' Economy Urged by Willkie

DENVER, July 12.—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie told a cheering crowd today that "to rehabilitate our economic life is as necessary as an adequate national defense."

Willkie, speaking from the steps of the state capital, said, "we must make our economy vital and vibrant to survive the most aggressive and destructive attack in all history on the democratic way of life."

5,100 Georgia Guardsmen Are Ready for Call

Various Military Units and Their Strength at Present Listed.

All units of Georgia's national guard are members of the 30th division which was listed in Washington dispatches yesterday as one of the four divisions to be given federal training "as soon as possible."

There are close to 5,100 officers and enlisted men in the Georgia national guard, under command of Brigadier General John E. Stoddard. The Georgia guard has headquarters in 26 towns, with strong detachments placed at strategic points.

Georgia Ready.

Several weeks ago General Stoddard announced that plans already had been made for quick mobilization of the state's militia. He said men already in the guard were prepared to move and that each unit in the state was fully equipped. Arrangements also had been made for recruiting additional men.

Latest records of the military department list Georgia's units as follows:

State staff, nine officers and 26 enlisted men.

One hundred seventy-ninth field artillery, Atlanta, 64 officers and 922 enlisted men.

Two hundred fourteenth coast artillery, with units in Washington, Statesboro, Marietta, Thomson, Augusta, Monroe, Milledgeville, Elberton, Cedartown and Calhoun, 49 officers and 1,187 enlisted men.

This organization yesterday was en route to Fort Barrancas, Fla., for a three-week training session, under command of General Stoddard. Atlanta officers in the regiment are Major Phil Brewster, battery commander; Lieutenant Colonel Charles S. Vance, executive officer; Captain M. H. Miller and First Lieutenant David Walker.

Thirtieth division, with headquarters at Macon, 22 officers and 236 enlisted men.

Fifty-ninth infantry brigade, Macon, three officers and 42 enlisted men.

One hundred twenty-first infantry, with units at Macon, Valdosta, Barnesville, Cordele, Dublin, Albany, Bainbridge, Jackson, Hawkinsville, Waycross, Brunswick and Thomasville, 68 officers and 1,298 enlisted men.

Fifty-fifth artillery brigade, headquarters Savannah, nine officers and 49 enlisted men.

One hundred eighteenth field artillery, Savannah, 54 officers and 750 enlisted men.

One hundred fifth medical regiment, Atlanta, nine officers and 66 enlisted men.

Stoddard's Staff.

One hundred fifth quartermaster regiment, Jackson, one officer and five enlisted men.

Twenty-third cavalry division, composed of the 108th cavalry units at Savannah, Atlanta and Hinesville, and the 55th cavalry brigade, Atlanta, 18 officers and 207 enlisted men.

On General Stoddard's staff are Lieutenant Colonel J. H. Shelton Jr., Major Charles H. Cox, Major Thomas O. Callaway, Major William M. Ward, Major Herbert C. Hatcher, Captain Harry A. Heins and Captain Luther T. Gillen.

The 30th division, in addition to Georgia, incorporates Tennessee, North and South Carolina. Headquarters is at Macon.

BULLITT GOES TO SPAIN.

MADRID, July 12.—(AP)—William C. Bullitt, United States ambassador to France, arrived in Madrid today "to get back in touch with Washington." He said communication from Vichy, present seat of the French government, was extremely slow and difficult.

Farley Denies He'll Take Walk If F. D. R. Runs

3d Term Foe Emphasizes He'll Go Along With Party.

CHICAGO, July 12. — (AP) — Chairman James A. Farley, of the Democratic National Committee, long a foe of the third-term movement, made it plain today that if next week's national convention nominates President Roosevelt, he will go along with the party's choice.

Farley dropped suddenly into a mood of intense seriousness when asked whether, if the chief executive runs again, he would "take a walk."

"Everybody who knows anything about me," he slowly answered, "knows that Jim Farley is a Democrat."

This harmony move was reinforced, too, by a statement from Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, himself a candidate upon whom much third party discussion has centered, that he would support the convention's nominee.

These developments occurred during a day which saw every incoming train loaded with delegates and convention-goers, most of them convinced that Mr. Roosevelt will accept the nomination.

CAN YOU NAME HALF?

Of the twenty-one Pan-American Republics of the Western Hemisphere, how many can you name? A third, half, two-thirds, all of them?

For how many could you give even the approximate date of original discovery, settlement and colonization? Could you, for any one of them, state the year in which it threw off European control and became independent? Could you name any of the national heroes of these countries? Can you name the "George Washington" of South America?

Most of us have forgotten the little we ever learned in school about this whole continent of sister American Republics.

Today, however, faced with the threat of foreign impenetration or domination, economic and military—dread threat of violation of our prized Monroe Doctrine—all the nations of this Western Hemisphere have pressing problems in common. They must hang together or they may all hang separately.

If you would like to have for constant reference, a comprehensive picture of the discovery, colonization, changes of government, achievement of independence and territorial readjustments of each and every one of the Pan-American Republics, send the coupon below for the Pan-American Histo-Graph in over 30 shades of color. In the days ahead, it behooves every American to know as much as possible about the Republics of this Hemisphere. This unique publication, prepared as the result of many months of detailed and painstaking research, gives you the main historical facts about all these governments. Dublin Reports Business Rises To New Levels

Building Activity, Postal Receipts Show Increase Over Average.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

DUBLIN, Ga., July 12.—Taking usually reliable barometers into consideration, business in Dublin during the first half of 1940 reached levels well above the average on the crest of increased building activities and postal receipts.

Gains in practically every line were reported.

Postmaster M. J. Guyton reported a three per cent increase in postal receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, over the corresponding period of 1939. The increase was brought about by an eight per cent gain in total income during the last quarter of the 1940 fiscal year, the postmaster reported.

Total receipts for the 1939-40 fiscal year reached $32,975.81, compared with $32,066.03 for the year previous. During the final quarter of the just-ended fiscal year, receipts reached $7,930.25, compared with $7,337.47 for the same period of 1939.

Building activities in the city during the first half of 1940 reached a new high for many years, almost doubling construction work over the same period of 1939, figures in the office of City Clerk Millard Rogers revealed.

Permits filed for the first six months of this year totaled $60,925, compared with $44,470 over the same period of 1939.

TERRELL DEPOSITS NEAR MILLION MARK.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

DAWSON, Ga., July 12.—Deposits in Terrell county's three banks soared near the million-dollar mark this week as reports showed total deposits to be $972,154.02 at the close of business June 29—a gain in deposits over the same date in 1939 of approximately $100,000. Deposits June 30, 1939, were $871,439.12.

Loans and discounts on June 29 of this year were $757,630.68, compared with $619,481.16 June 30, 1939.

Demand deposits totaled $667,362.00; time certificates, $193,321.89, and savings deposits $111,461.13.

POSTAL RECEIPTS SET ALBANY RECORD.

The total for the 12-month period was $122,259.87, the largest ever recorded in any year, fiscal or calendar, and compared with $117,633.77 in the 12 months ended a year ago.

Jack Dempsey's Girls Will Live With Mother

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)—The Jack Dempseys' separation agreement provides that their two daughters, Joan, 6, and Barbara, 4, shall live with their mother, the former musical comedy star Hannah Williams, and Dempsey will pay the support of all three, Attorney Moses Polakoff disclosed today.

Plea for Cameron Scheduled Today

The Georgia Court of Appeals will hear arguments at 11 o'clock this morning on whether George Cameron, indicted in connection with the East Point floggings, will be allowed a change of venue for his trial.

Indicted on four counts, Cameron was denied a change of venue by Judge Hugh Dorsey, of Fulton superior court. Attorneys for Cameron contended the minds of the public had been inflamed by newspaper accounts of the floggings.

Court of Appeals attaches explained that a case involving change of venue takes precedence over other cases, and that this was the reason for the early hearing of the case.

CITY AIDES RENAMED.

ATLANTA, GA., JULY 13, 1940.

Another Day

It is rather a relief to know the present French government will not be seated at Clermont-Ferrand. It did not seem fitting that the town in which Peter of Amiens sounded the call to the crusades should house the government of a doomed nation or a government modeled along the military Fascist lines of the Franco regime in Spain.

There is something of a parallel between the conditions of today and those of the eleventh century, when the arrogance and armed might of the infidels threatened the comparatively enlightened civilization of the western nations. It was felt that the Turks would gradually acquire irresistible power and eventually invade the west. The feeling was fanned by the growing hardships of the western pilgrims to the cradle of the Christian religion.

It was to Clermont-Ferrand that the ambassadors of the great western nations came to hear the call to arms of the first Crusade. It was here the fervid pleas of Peter of Amiens so moved these representatives of many peoples that they shouted, of one accord, "God Wills It." How often since have peoples answered that battle cry, to do good and to do evil.

There in that little town of southern France, in the midst of the rolling lands many call the fairest of all, was the genesis of many of the great wars of today, of the mighty coalitions of nations and of the dreams of world unity. There in that long dead day was conceived the spirit that animated over the centuries the impelling power of Christianity. Militarily, the seven crusades that followed the cry of Peter of Amiens were of little importance. Morally, they fused the strength of the banners of Christendom. Once again today Christendom girds to meet a new threat, a new upsurge of pagan philosophy. Better it is, indeed, that the government of Marshal Petain chose a more appropriate place from which to reign over the remnant of their once great land.

While the Nazis torpedo a prison ship filled with Nazis, the British sink the fleet of an old ally. Civilization, devouring its young, is not a pretty sight.

Each New Development

"Over the weather" flying became a reality this week when two giant transport planes took off from each coast and climbed into the substratosphere on an overnight journey to the opposite coast. From east to west, 14 minutes more than 12 hours. From west to east, less than 14 hours. It was not many years ago it took an automobile that many days to make the journey, and less than a century ago it took that many weeks, ofttimes that many months to cover the same distance.

Development of over-the-weather flying means more than greater speed on the long hops. It means greater comfort, for the storms of lesser regions will not buffet the great ships flying between three and four miles above the earth. It means greater safety, for the pilots are forced to seek passage through clouds and storms in dangerous territory, where a slight deviation from the course has in times past meant tragedy. Even in lower altitude flying that danger has today been minimized, but in the sub-stratosphere, the danger has been almost eliminated.

It is perhaps sad that we cannot be sure this development has only peaceful uses. But in this world of ours, it is imperative that peoples realize that almost every peacetime advance in aviation is matched by the same use possible for wartime aviation.

The great height at which these planes can fly over long distances in perfect comfort to crew and passengers means also that warplanes can approach at the same high altitudes over the same long distances and that they will be that much harder to detect before they are over their objectives. It means that antiaircraft action must be improved, means that the task of guarding the Panama Canal against long-distance raiders will be that much more difficult and imperative.

Unstinted praise is due those who developed the great new airliners. They have opened a new vista of human progress. But at the same time, let all realize that this world is narrowing at a pace never before dreamed of.

Knowing what to omit to accentuate the rest, says Somerset Maugham, is the secret of forceful writing. Also, of swim suit design.

It Is Beginning

Secretary of State Cordell Hull has found it necessary to warn, in plain words, that European powers must keep "hands off" the forthcoming Pan-American conference at Havana.

The American official admitted to reporters at a press conference that he had heard reports that German diplomats had "warned" some of the Latin-American countries against taking any action aimed directly or indirectly against Germany.

This apparent attempt to intimidate the republics of Central and South America is typical of German diplomatic methods. The warning comes first. It did in Europe, to all those nations which later were crushed under the mechanized heel of Nazidom. Later come charges that German interests have been imperiled. Next step is a campaign in the Nazi-controlled press charging vicious injustices to German nationals resident in the country chosen for attack. Then demands for indemnities. Further charges of "anti-German" activities. Then comes the demand for unconditional surrender, followed in quick order by invasion, blitzkrieg and destruction. And, through all the program, the Nazi agents have been creating the "Fifth Column," in the doomed country.

It has been told, time and time again, that the danger from Nazi lust for conquest is very great to this country. It has likewise been pointed out, repeatedly, that if a success-drunk Nazi power should seek to control the western hemisphere, the first insidious steps of attack would come through some of the smaller republics to the south.

The situation which impelled Secretary Hull to issue his warning prior to the convening of the Pan-American conference provides tangible evidence these early fears of the Nazi approach to this country were not groundless. It provides one more proof, if such were needed, that a defense absolutely impregnable against a whole world in arms is necessary if this country is to retain her independence and her chosen way of life.

Waiting for the battle of the eons—Hitler versus the new ice age—can be tedious.

The Four Horsemen

If anything at all gives Adolf Hitler pause it must be the thought of what winter may bring to Europe. Certainly the Four Horsemen will ride again, bringing pestilence and famine.

There just is not enough food in Europe. Already near-famine is reported in various sections of France. Reports from Denmark are the Danes are having to slaughter their cattle because of lack of grain with which to feed them. Denmark imported grain.

Food supplies in Norway seriously will be impaired by the war and occupation. Rumania reports it may lose its best grain crop because the men are in the army and no one is left to harvest the crop. Farms in Hungary also are suffering.

Belgium was wrecked and can have no crop. Germany itself is now well-fed but hunger may come even to Germany. It may be expected the Germans, with practical ruthlessness, will feed their own people first and give what is left, if any, to their victims.

If hunger does come the rich Ukraine section of Russia will become very tempting to German eyes. Russia knows this and will either resist or defend, according to how much real basis there is for the pact between Joe Stalin and Adolf Hitler.

If extreme hunger comes there will come with it proletarian uprisings to plague the German conqueror and bring the mailed fist smashing down on the helpless.

It is going to be, from almost every angle, one of the worst winters Europe has seen.

That fact alone will make it necessary for Hitler to attack and defeat England before winter comes if he is to be master of the continent and England.

We never expected to see the day when looking like only a million dollars was bad.

HOOVER BETS

(From The Charlotte News.)

The best bet of professional politicos is that the memory of the people is notoriously short. Without that to count on, they would have tough going of it.

Take Herbert Hoover. In that speech at the convention, he had to say, among other things, that:

"We must restore decent life and living to one-third of our farmers and workers, who have been chronically submerged by the New Deal."

The New Deal, that is, is charged with having submerged them in the first place, and with having kept them there. Not a word about who was President of the United States when the great depression began, not a word about what party had been in control of the government for the nine years before it began. Not a word about promises of "two cars in every garage" and "two chickens in every pot." Not one word about the four years of waiting on promises that prosperity was "just around the corner," while the lot of all of us got worse and worse and that submerged one-third rapidly approached starvation. Not a word about the well-established historical fact that the high tariffs of the Republican party were mainly responsible for submerging these people in the years from 1880 forward.

The New Deal has utterly failed to solve the problem of these people, but it is a little thick to be told that it invented the problem.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

STATE OF THE DEFENSE PROGRAM WASHINGTON, July 12.—With respect to certain kinds of vital equipment, the army is still suffering from the indecision which always seems to afflict our military men when they are asked to place big orders for immediate delivery. Confronted with huge appropriations and carte blanche to spend them, the American army is rather in the position of a poor woman, used to scrimping and saving, who is taken into Cartier's and told to choose her own memento. The officers can't make up their minds!

But, after causing some serious delays in the defense program, this problem of deciding what to order now appears to be nearing a solution. Meanwhile the record to date deserves inspection, particularly in view of the dire predictions of the prophets and wiseacres who foresaw that the defense council would either be sabotaged or destroyed.

TANGIBLE ACHIEVEMENTS Messrs. William Knudsen, Edward R. Stettinius, Ralph Budd, Sidney Hillman and their compeers have already let $1,000,000,000 in contracts. They expect to let at least $1,000,000,000 more in the next 30 days. Meanwhile, they have formed an organization so flexible and yet so well knit as to arouse equally warm admiration among the businessmen who must deal with it and the New Dealers who have come in contact with it on the government end.

Every sector of the organization has tangible achievements to its credit. For example, despite the fact that industry knows him as one of the ablest and wisest labor leaders, Sidney Hillman's appointment as a member of the defense council was greeted with cries of horror from professional viewers-with-alarm. Since the council started operations, four strikes of the utmost seriousness have threatened—in motors, in shipping, in aluminum and in copper mining.

Any one of these strikes would have stopped an important part of the defense program dead in its tracks. For each of them, Hillman got together with Knudsen and Stettinius. After reaching a common conclusion, the trio went into each strike situation, Knudsen and Stettinius appealing to the managements and Hillman to labor. Three of the strikes have been settled without any stoppage of production. In the case of the fourth, in the aluminum industry, negotiations have just been resumed and a settlement is expected.

Hillman's achievements are of interest because they reverse the gloomy forecasters. Interesting in the same way is the President's and the Treasury's quick co-operation with the defense council in loosening tax amortization requirements on plants built by industry for defense purposes. Messrs. Knudsen and Stettinius informed the President and the Treasury on Monday that the present amortization system constituted a "near bottleneck." The Treasury conducted a brief investigation. There were a couple of friendly conferences. And 48 hours later the President announced that the changes suggested by Knudsen and Stettinius would be recommended to be incorporated in the new tax law.

Again aviation production has caused much dreary concern. Yet the representatives of the army and navy agreed on a final program early last week. Preparations for the program are going full blast. Despite the attitude of Henry Ford, the only production gap will probably be filled by the Packard Motor Company's construction of an in-line engine plant. (Reports that Packard had decided to turn the job down were misleading; negotiations are still in progress and going very well.) George J. Mead and Captain Sidney Kraus, the two experts on aviation production, are now confident that all the demands of the army and navy will be met on schedule.

THE REAL JOKE In fact, except for the delays and indecisions in the service departments themselves, the defense program is making as good progress as could be hoped. It is now predicted that virtually complete equipment for an army of 400,000 will be ready within four months, which is extremely speedy work considering the huge deficiencies in equipment the army started with.

The common story, that the New Dealers would interfere and spoil it all, has no foundation. As the New Dealers were at no time consulted by the President on the defense program or on any matter relating to foreign policy, this was anticipated by those who took the trouble to discover the true status of these supposedly evil governmental influences. The real joke on the New Dealers, however, is that if the businessmen he has called in continue to do such a good job for the President, they may partly take away one of the Republicans' biggest issues in the oncoming election.

SAYS MONEY QUESTION PRINCIPAL ISSUE.

Editor, Constitution: If you want prosperity, more jobs, etc., then make the Democratic platform pledge constitutional money, and agree to put that 21 billion dollars to work. It is now buried to help the rich, says Tom Watson. The money question should be the principal issue. G. L. KELL.

WHAT CAN WE SHOW FOR DEFENSE?

Editor Constitution: I read with a great deal of interest this morning your editorial, "The Fate of the Indolent." Mr. Roosevelt has been in office now going on two terms, has spent seven to eight billion dollars since he has been in office and what have we to show for defense? That alone should defeat him if he should offer for a third term.

CONSTRUCTIVE AND EDUCATIONAL EDITORIALS.

Editor Constitution: I was particularly interested in Ralph McGill's column and in the paragraph headed, "Origin of Fifth Column." The interpretation of this phrase completely annihilated the curiosity of a great number of people, who did not know what it meant. Especially those residing in the remote rural sections where current conversation on present-day topics are seldom heard.

I appreciate these constructive and educational editorials. They are certainly helpful to people throughout the United States. Please keep up the good work.

WILLKIE HAS BACKING OF WALL STREET

Editor Constitution: To followers of the habits and customs of the Republican party, it is not surprising that this party has, at last, come out from behind the mulberry bush and selected one of the Wall Street boys as candidate for the high office of President of these United States of America.

The sympathies of the Republican party have always been with Wall Street, but not until the 1940 Philadelphia convention had they dared pluck one of their candidates right off Wall Street. They always kept it under cover that the real membership of the Republican party began in Wall Street with the big money barons. Naturally, the big money barons are in control of the public utilities, which gouge the people, 27,000,000 electric light customers, to their heart's content. The Wall Street boys center their interests on how much money they can make, not how they can relieve the overburdened public on high rentals, high electric light bills, high finance, huge and exorbitant rates of interest from private banks and bankers.

In selecting Willkie, the Republicans have selected one of their own fold, from the bears and the bulls, who will, at all hazards, if he should get control of the congress, see to it that congress repeals any laws or scuttles any plans to relieve the consumers of electricity, in particular.

Willkie would seek to destroy the good that Roosevelt has done for the farmers and small towns in their electric light burdens. Willkie would do away with the TVA, which has furnished so much cheap electricity for the farmers and small towns. Willkie acquired his political reputation by attacking Roosevelt and the New Deal and by claiming that the power companies should continue to draw their millions by overcharging people for electric power.

The Republican party is asking the people to return into power the party from whom we inherited the depression. The United States does not propose to be led into the wilderness again by the Republican party.

The answer to all of this will be on the first Tuesday of November, when the people of these United States will give the negative answer to Willkie in his aspirations for the presidency, and re-elect Franklin Delano Roosevelt for a third term.

This country will not turn over the government of its people to Wall Street financiers or to power trusts!

HOPES WE WILL NOT HELP HITLER

Editor Constitution: I hope that we will not let sentiment place us on the side of Hitler and his partner by sending our food and clothes to Europe to avoid suffering the coming winter.

We, of course, have a feeling for all the people downtrodden by Hitler and his gang, but every pound of food and every garment sent to Europe this winter will be just that much help to Hitler. If the people or some of them have to starve, it is better for them to do so, than for us to send our food to them, and have Hitler that much stronger to make war against England.

Equipment or no equipment, if the masses decide to move against him, he will crumble, as he no doubt has thousands handling his guns and tanks who do not agree with his principle.

Please try to keep our supplies for the English, and our own starving, with not one pound for the people of Europe.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Another AEF Not Proposed NEW YORK, July 12.—Senator Burt Wheeler holds that Americans should fight only in defense of their homeland, which is what they all say, including the Germans, and that a "foreign" war, meaning a war on foreign soil, including the enemy's, is unthinkable.

He is of that group who insist that no Americans shall fight abroad because necessarily they would help Great Britain.

The idea of another AEF to France or Britain never was seriously proposed. For one thing, the British and French were very cocky during that phase which was called the Boer war and couldn't find fighting room for the soldiers they had. The British had plenty of manpower at home in mufti, and these men, having lived under the guns for some time, presumably were closer to military fitness than American civilians. For another reason, There were no American soldiers to send. And, for still another, it was foreseen that France might crack up and that an expeditionary force, caught friendless in a strange and hostile land, might be held for ransom, so to speak.

Nor is there today any proposal before the country that an American army be sent to help the British or even to beat the Germans to a problematical punch in that direction. There is still no army to send, the spirit doesn't exist and, again, such a force would be rounded up, whereupon the U. S. A. would have to give up everything to bail them out.

Doesn't Go Anywhere But, as one of those who respect Senator Wheeler, I don't follow him, because he doesn't go anywhere. He just says "no fighting on foreign fields," leaving his fellow citizens to conclude that if war must be the United States should give the party on her own home grounds.

But France gave the party in 1914-1918 and again in 1940, and the wear and tear on the country was something awful. After all these years, now and again, right up to the fall of 1939, some French peasants would stub the snout of his plow against a souvenir and be splattered over some old battle ground. France was still tweezing crumbling brick, splintered glass and rusty iron out of her hide long after the Germans had settled down amid modern comforts built with money obtained by fraud from the American people to create the equipment for their next war away from home.

Those Germans are smart. They reatlize that all wars are foreign wars, and this time France, again, has given the party in collaboration with Poland, Norway, Holland, Belgium and Britain. And again, with the exception of a few divots scuffed up in Germany by the British fliers, the nations which are merely defending their own soil have suffered all the damage.

They Didn't Attack The unfortunate Poles, Dutch and Belgians certainly did not attack Germany, whatever may be said of the political moves of France and Britain. They just put themselves in a position of defense, and Hitler jumped them, crying, "They pulled a knife on me!" The Norwegians didn't even do that, but Hitler said they were thinking of pulling a knife. In all cases the damage to the premises has been terrible.

Not only that, but in these wars civilians get in the way, and in an American war of home defense the civilians would be Mrs. Smith from down the street and her old invalid mother and George Spelvin's wife and children. They would be blown up by enemy bombers in a most intimate, personal way while trying to escape. Mr. Smith and Mr. Spelvin, of ccurse, would be miles away defending their soil.

In no heckling spirit but in an earnest desire for elaboration some questions may be asked Senator Wheeler:

How close may the enemy come before his intentions are considered to be hostile? Does the enemy take over the British and French naval and aviation outposts just off American shores before the defense takes place? Does the United States have to suffer all the civilian casualties and awful material wreckage and the enemy none? How can the United States smash up his war industries without fighting on foreign soil? And do we give him our solemn promise that he needn't bother to protect his plants and may concentrate on the destruction of ours?

That sounds like the battle plan of Bat Nelson, who used to break their knuckles with his chin. He won some great fights that way, But you ought to see Bat Nelson.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

GEORGIA'S DELEGATION Georgia's delegation to the convention at Chicago will depart this afternoon from the Union station aboard a special train.

The delegation is pledged to President Roosevelt as long as his name is before the convention. If his name is not before the delegates the Georgians are uninstructed and will ballot among themselves to determine which man to support. The majority will rule and the delegation will vote as a unit.

The delegation probably will be split on the next choice, should there be one. There is a great deal of Hull sentiment in the delegation, but Cordell Hull, great man that he is, no longer seems to be the sort of competitor necessary to match Wendell Willkie's speaking skill. Hull speaks seriously, more after the manner of Senator Robert Taft, the Republican who unsuccessfully opposed Willkie at Philadelphia. His speeches are excellent as to content, but he does not have the speaking style which makes Willkie's utterances glitter in the Roosevelt manner.

The Republicans are tremendously pleased about Willkie. For years they have complained about voting for a radio voice. Now they have one of their own and are so happy about it they are eager to have millions be swayed by the melodious charm of Mr. Willkie's vocal offerings. A voice no longer seems so terrible to the Republicans.

At any rate, a voice is important enough to make it necessary to have one. The Willkie drawl, and stories, will be most effective.

Mr. Hull no longer appears to be the best man to combat Willkie. He can't match Willkie's popular appeal. The Democrats suddenly find themselves in a difficult spot. There just doesn't seem to be anyone around who can match Willkie, except Mr. Roosevelt.

THE PRESIDENT'S COURSE There will be considerable futile speculation, as the Democratic delegation rolls northward, on whether the President will permit his name to go before the convention.

No one knows but Mr. Farley. Mr. Farley won't tell.

There is a certain soundness in the argument of those who insist the President told Farley he will not run. They point out that Farley appeared to be satisfied on leaving the President; that he was quoted as saying everything was satisfactory. They do not believe he would have taken the attitude he did if the President had told him he was to run.

Lately, however, another report has begun to gain some strength. It is that the President will run and make the campaign. If victorious he then will resign as soon as the inauguration is done and things are settled, turning over affairs to Mr. Hull, who thus would be saved the labor of the campaign and who would continue on with his important duties as secretary of state.

This reasoning is plausible. So many things are. And so many things are not. The Democrats would like to avoid the third-term issue. They could have done so had not the Republicans nominated Willkie. Taft or Dewey would have been fairly easy to beat with most any Democrat.

Now, the pinch is on.

CONSERVATIVE REACTION No one accurately can gauge this election. No one can be sure how far the reaction against the New Deal has gone in the great and inarticulate "white collar" class.

Labor is loud and sometimes too articulate. Big business is for Willkie. So is Wall Street. The professional men, generally, will support Willkie.

The farmers are to be divided. Many farmers of the middle west and west do not care much for Willkie but do like McNary, his running mate.

The so-called middle class, or "white collar" class, will hold the balance of power. No one knows how the thousands of clerks, salesmen, office workers and so on will vote. They have been for the President. But in the last two years they have begun to dislike Mr. John L. Lewis and to blame his rise on the President. Some of them have very definite feelings about the court fight and about relief. They feel that labor and relief have gotten the New Deal gravy and that the white-collar class has got it in the neck.

Just how many feel this way no one can say. They are, by nature, conservative. If enough of them desert the President for Willkie on the basis Willkie is a liberal but will keep out radicals and prevent abuses of administration, they can turn the election.

They may stage their own sit-down strike on the Democratic party.

There are a lot of factors and no one can be sure about them. Jim Farley probably has the best idea. And Jim is not saying anything. His silence is deafening.

It ought to be an interesting convention. And it will be, if the President is drafted, a historic one.

The Constitution is going to have its Washington staff man, Gladstone Williams, and two from The Constitution staff at Chicago. These in addition, of course, to the usual array of men from the Associated Press and United Press, plus some special writers.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad To His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My Dear Louise:

Once I was afraid you would have too little respect for money and throw it away and never be sure of tomorrow's dinner; now I'm afraid you'll respect it too much and learn to think people superior merely because they have money—a belief which is often true in reverse, but nevertheless dangerous, for it tends to make young people ornery, snobbish and worthless.

So I'll tell you something that happened in a small industrial city in New York a few years ago.

There was a certain man—let's call him Mr. Jones—who managed a business that seemed small potatoes to other people in the city, yet was known and respected from coast to coast. His salary was $25,000 a year.

Very rich people may consider that sum too small to make high-nosed snobs of four people, but there is abundant evidence that a fifth of it can do the trick in the right environment.

Anyway, Mr. Jones had a wife and two daughters and a son (the kids ranging in age from 17 to 21) and they were the snootiest and silliest four you could find in a day's journey.

They felt superior to anybody who worked. They called a servant for such a small task as fetching a magazine from the other side of the room, and they couldn't even dress themselves without help.

They hated democracy. They longed to live in a country where nice people had titles, and they thought the upper class, meaning themselves, should rule by divine right. When they entertained a bogus noble, you'd think they had an archangel in the house. That gives you the general idea.

Well, they spent the 25,000 bucks making a big show, and got poor Jones a little deeper in debt every year, and finally in desperation he decided to save them by teaching them a little sense the hard way.

He scuttled the ship. He hadn't been able to save a dollar for ten years, but in happier days he had bought a fertile little farm in a valley far from the region of evening frocks and butlers. So he faked a nervous breakdown, lost his job, and led his outraged family to the sticks.

It is better for a family to lose its money and save its soul, and there's no sense in working hard if it makes your only kid get silly ideas. It's just a hint.

Love, DAD.

Regents' Board Streamlines Its Committees

Groups Combined To Prevent Overlapping of Duties.

The State Board of Regents yesterday adopted a streamlined plan of organization which will eliminate miscellaneous committees and confine the work of the board to six large committees.

Cason J. Callaway, of LaGrange, who presided at his first meeting since his election as chairman of the board, said under the new setup each regent would be a member of not more than two committees.

The finance and education committees were combined, Callaway said, to prevent the overlapping of duties. Other committees are building, organization and law, visitation, agriculture and trust funds.

Callaway also announced that checks for approximately $200,000, due on salaries for the past fiscal year, would be mailed out in the next few days. He expressed hope that during the coming year all salaries could be paid on the day they are due.

Chancellor S. V. Sanford, who has been ill for several weeks, was welcomed back by members of the board.

Revised committees of the board are as follows:

Finance-Education—Clark Howell, chairman; George Hains, vice chairman; R. D. Harvey, John G. Kennedy and Miller S. Bell.

Building—L. W. Robert Jr., chairman; Miller S. Bell, vice chairman; J. Knox Gholston and A. S. Hardy.

Organization and Law—John G. Kennedy, chairman; John W. Bennett, Willis Battle, George Hains and J. D. Gardner.

Visitation — T. Jack Lance, chairman; R. D. Harvey, Earl B. Braswell, Willis Battle and George C. Woodruff.

Agriculture—J. Knox Gholston, chairman; Clark Howell, J. D. Gardner, John W. Bennett and Albert S. Hardy.

Trust Funds—George C. Woodruff, chairman; John G. Kennedy, Earl B. Braswell, L. W. Robert Jr. and T. Jack Lance.

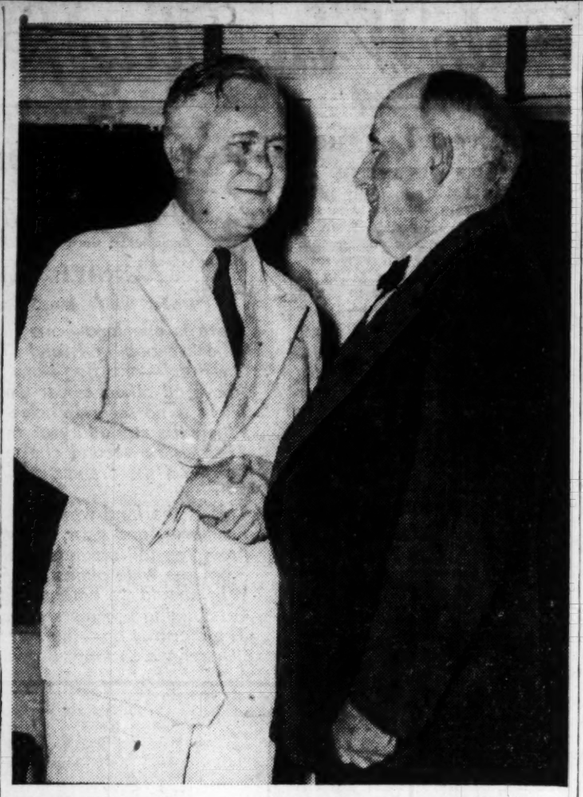

'Amos 'n' Andy' Given 4 Months

"Amos 'n' Andy" was sentenced to four months in the federal penitentiary here by the traverse jury here yesterday.

"Amos 'n' Andy" is Amos Andrew Alonzo Brown, Negro, who was serving a sentence of a year and a day in the federal penitentiary for forgery.

But "Amos 'n' Andy" was given a nickname after the famous radio characters and was given a place of trust in the penitentiary. In fact he was transferred to honor farm No. 2 as a reward for his work and attitude.

But a short time ago "Amos 'n' Andy" took leave, needless to say, without permission, and yesterday he was convicted for that. Now he must serve his sentence out and then the four additional months.

Mrs. Quinlan Wins Leniency In Driving Case

Ex-Atlanta Woman Tells N. Y. Judge Pain Caused Actions.

Mrs. Cornelia Quinlan, formerly of Atlanta, whose driving of a station wagon in midtown New York recently landed her in the psychopathic ward of Bellevue hospital, yesterday received a suspended sentence when she told the judge her erratic driving was caused by arthritic pains in her shoulder, the result of shell-shock and gas suffered while driving a Red Cross ambulance in the World War.

Magistrate Thomas Aurelic, himself a war veteran, said, "This is from one buddy to another. She was not in her right mind and deserves consideration. I believe Mrs. Quinlan has been amply punished."

Mrs. Quinlan, who had $10,000 in her purse at the time of her arrest, first was charged with disorderly conduct, dangerous driving, and failing to obey an officer when, weaving through Fifth Avenue traffic June 27, she crashed into a taxicab after first hurling from the side of her car a policeman who had jumped on the running board to try to stop her.

New Hatch Bill May Apply to 1,000 in State

Most of Employes Concerned in Department of Public Welfare.

By The Associated Press.

More than 1,000 state and county employes may be removed from Georgia's political picture by the new Hatch bill, now before President Roosevelt.

The measure, a companion to the original Hatch act banning political activity by federal employes, applies to officials and employes working on programs financed in whole or in part by the federal government.

Biggest single agency so financed in Georgia is the Department of Public Welfare, which dispenses benefits to old-age pensioners, dependent children and needy blind, arranges distribution of surplus commodities and certifies enlistments for the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Approximately $180,000 a year is contributed by Washington for administrative expenses—payment of salaries for workers who direct the involved departmental machinery. About 125 of these are on the state pay roll. Another 700, estimate fiscal officials, are employed by county welfare departments.

The state workers are almost certain to be politically "demilitarized" by the new Hatch measure if it is signed by the President. Their pay comes from a departmental bank account into which both state and federal funds are poured.

Whether the county employes also would be included is yet uncertain, but spokesmen in the department theorized affirmatively, since part of their pay likewise comes from the same account. County employes are not on the state pay roll, but receive the money from their local departments from monthly allotments made to the counties.

Supporting this thesis, one official cited a 1938 federal income tax ruling which held that federal funds do not lose their identity, regardless of successive turnover by state agencies.

Besides the welfare department, other units of the state government pay workers partly in federal funds. These include the Department of Education, the Labor Department and the State Highway Department all of which would feel the neutralizing effect of the new legislation.

Already out of politics are members of the state patrol, eliminated by Georgia law, and employes of the Division of Wild Life, silenced by edict of Director Charles Elliott.

Trainees Here Are Developing Esprit de Corps

Fort McPherson Citizen-Soldiers Form Committee, Including 3 Faiths

The southeast's citizen-soldier trainees sought to crystallize an apparent esprit de corps to carry them through the hard drills and marches ahead yesterday as they organized a camp committee including Jewish, Protestant, and Catholic representatives from among their number.

They wind up their first week in the special C. M. T. C. at Fort McPherson with barracks inspections and lectures Saturday morning, begin harder work Monday.

"We'll have a song leader in each platoon," explained J. G. Lusk, Greenville, Miss., broker, who has been named president of the trainees' committee.

"When we get on these long marches, and the spirits as well as legs begin to fag, maybe we can do a little singing.

"There's nothing will pep a man up like hearing, and singing, a good march song.

"We may get up a quartet, and plan some entertainments. After we get hardened to camp life, we'll probably find time to have some camp programs in the evenings."

Esprit de Corps Developed.

Mr. Lusk asserted the trainees already have developed a definite esprit de corps.

"We're getting to know each other, and we're finding out that there are some mighty good Americans here."

He said the selection of representatives from each of the four barracks buildings from the three faiths "is the American way—we respect the other fellow's beliefs and training and learning new things about that kind of Americanism."

Also serving as officers in the group are Jules C. Lazard, New Orleans broker, vice president; Hubert R. Lewis, Memphis lawyer, secretary; and Ralph Marsicano, Tampa assistant city attorney, treasurer.

Other committeemen are Hunter K. Cochran, Mississippi state senator from Holly Springs; J. A. Young, Augusta, Ga., electrical engineer; George Criss, Grenada, Miss., postmaster; Ralph Taylor, New Orleans cotton exporter; Marion A. Collins, Augusta, Ga., salesman; Joseph T. Brown, Atlanta printing plant superintendent; H. R. E. Hampton, Columbia, S. C., newspaper writer, and Ellis Irwin, New Orleans lawyer.

Work With Weapons.

Friday's schedule was devoted almost entirely to work with weapons. The army's new Garand rifles were used for stripping and assembling exercises and marksmanship exercises.

The .30 caliber machine gun, and the .45 automatic pistol also were used in the same work by the four trainee groups, taking up the various weapons in turn.

The morning program was strenuous, with two and one-half hours devoted to close order drill for squads in the new infantry "streamlined" organization plan, and in extended order drill. The trainees used their Springfield rifles in an hour and a half preliminary rifle marksmanship exercise.

Surgeon of Army Ordered to Atlanta

Colonel James E. Baylis, army medical corps, yesterday was ordered to Atlanta from his Washington station. It was understood he will become fourth corps area surgeon, attached to the staff of the commanding general.

A native of Mississippi, Colonel Baylis graduated from Tulane with a medical degree in 1910 and from the Army Medical School. He completed a course at the War College in 1931.

Also included in army orders yesterday was the transfer of Captain Ralph N. Woods, infantry, stationed at Fort McPherson, to Fort McClellan, Ala.

Willkie's 'Shadow' Casts Spell Over Convention Democrats

G.O.P. Candidate Flies Through; Contralto Wants Publicity; Quarrelsome Element Threatens New 'Putsch.'

By JACK SPALDING,
Staff Writer.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 12.—Memoranda found in a lazy reporter's drawer a few days before the opening of the Democratic National Convention:

Here's a dull one, but the city editor might like it. Willkie flew through town, leaving in his wake the tale that 5,000,000 Willkie-for-president buttons will be stuck on good Democratic lapels as they come back from the pressers.

If an old delegate, preferably one who voted for Williams Jennings Bryan, can be found, might be a good idea to get a story on why the south consented to abrogation of the two thirds rule.

If he wears a wide-brimmed hat, ask him what was promised in return.

If he sports a goatee, ask him what has it gotten.

Ask him does he seriously think that the south ever will get anything again.

And if the Old Delegate dips his whiskers in a bourbon or so, he might be good for a story on the present position of southerners, suh, in the Democratic party.

Might be a good story in Carter Barron, brother of Red, Washington theater man, and chairman of the entertainment committee. Carter has the job of dealing with hefty contraltos who would gladly give their all to the party in exchange for a chance to sing the Star-Spangled Banner and crab about $5,000,000 worth of free publicity.

Carter Is Unlucky.

Carter is the unlucky guy who has to fight off song promoters, both pro and amateur. A fine song came through the office today, urging a third term for You Know Who. Its gist:

"When it comes to that foreign affair
He's the boy that's really there."

Ought to be a story in the number of clergymen appointed to see to it that the convention gets off under heavenly, as well as White House, auspices. Pretty well restricted to denominations with a million or more members.

Here's a new variation on the old wolf in sheep's clothing saw: They're calling Willkie "a donkey in elephant's clothing." Could be used as a filler instead of some of those things they stick in about the yearly rainfall in Pondicherry, India.

A study of Jim Farley would be apropos today if you knew him well enough to recognize the signs. It should go along this line: Usually genial, he's beginning to show strain from lugging that secret around.

People who know him pretty well are very sympathetic. Some think his secret is driving him a little nuts. But they say he's too darned honorable to ease the strain by confiding in anyone, even his immediate family.

And why does he keep on holding press conferences? Can't say anything, and has to put up with a lot of unmerciful ribbing. The back of his neck gets redder, but his smile never changes.

Is "Purge" Bloc Strong?

Would be a great story if it could be proved that the same crowd who sold the President on the purge of 1938 were trying to take over the party today, and with the Prexy's blessing. There are plenty of rumors . . . and some strained faces.

Would be a sorry day for the Democrats if true, and a boon and a blessing to W. Willkie. Social work and practical politics don't mix particularly well. The result is as much of a botch as a bride's first breakfast.

Some little laughter around convention headquarters this morning. A newspaper clipping arrived from a western state, announcing that one of that state's delegates to the convention had been named head of the local Democratic Willkie-for-President Club. That gave his alternate a seat on the delegation, and leaves the original member back home, presumably mad as a hornet and working harder than ever for Willkie.

"The shadow of Willkie hangs heavy over Chicago," might be a good lead for a story soon. There's some defensive talk going on. And a lot of people wondering how many delegates are really elephants wrapped in donkey hides.

Most significant story knocking around is the one about the lack of stories. The reporters assigned to this convention are complaining. Destinies of nations and whatnot hang in the balance, and there's nothing to write about.

Only One Man Knows.

The only man out here that knows anything is saying nothing. And everybody else is guessing. By now they're tired of that. Every available theory has been worked over until it's dead.

Not even the feature writers are getting much out of it. They're sitting around waiting the arrival of the picturesque and the grotesque.

Good Morning—By Louie D. Newton

Sunday's lesson, Chapter 3 through 19 of the Book of Job, is the epic story of the great soul reaching out in wistful hope and unwavering faith for reassurance regarding immortality. The golden text is his shout of victory: "For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that He shall stand at the latter day upon the earth."

For seven days Job was silent in the presence of his great affliction. He did not doubt God, but he could not understand why he was thus afflicted. His mind was filled with serious questions, both regarding the life that here is and the life out beyond the grave. At last he cried: "If a man die, shall he live again?"

Then follows that long, tedious examination of his condition. He reviewed the past. He looked, as best he could, at the present. He wondered about the future. Who would not have had such questions, tested and afflicted as was Job?

What did the unhappy present mean? What would the uncertain future hold? Was God's mercy exhausted? Was God's justice ended? What of man's destiny?

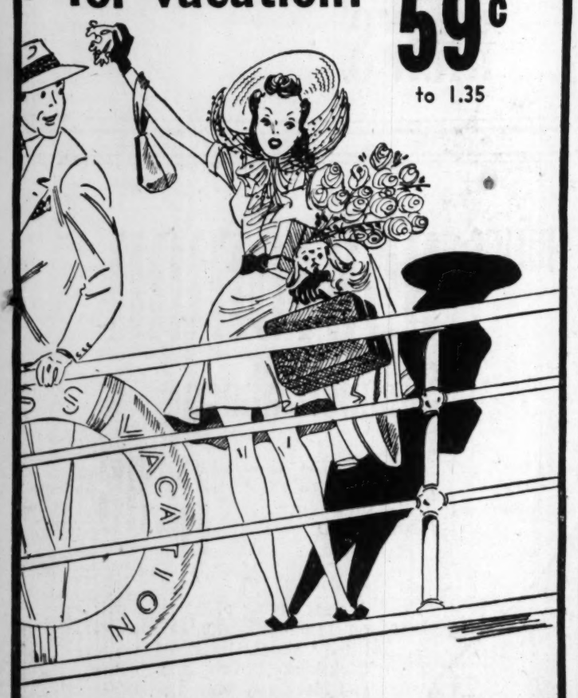

These were the questions that Job faced. Thank God, he faced them. We do well to face the facts of life. It is not the Christian way of life to deny facts. Job faced the facts as they were. His friends tried to explain these facts on unworthy grounds, but not Job. He waited upon the Lord. He would not run away from the trials of life. He would meet them, trusting in God.

And God verified Himself to His trusting servant. God vindicated His righteous will, His loving care, His everlasting plan of dedemption. Job lived at his best here, which is the Divine plan of preparation to live hereafter. We must live on, each of us must live on forever; but how we are to live in the vast hereafter is determined by our personal, conscious relation in this life to God. Job settled the question, and settled it rightly. And as Job laid hold upon God, in the face of his severe afflictions, so may we each today lay hold upon Him, having His assurance that all things work together for good to those who love Him—that these light afflictions, which are but for a season, shall work for us a far exceeding and eternal weight of glory. Selah.

Crackers Drop Three Games Behind as Vols Win Slugfest, 12-7

All in The Game

BY JACK TROY

A Slick Deal If Joe Engel ever gets the worst of a baseball deal you'll know then it's time for him to bid the game a fond farewell.

The suggestion Clark Griffith once made to Engel as a player would be apropos.

Canny Griffith told Engel it would be a swell idea if he hung up his baseball shoes while he still had them on.

Anyway, here's the inside of that deal whereby Joe gets $25,000 or $30,000 from the Cincinnati Reds.

He is privileged to use Art Luce for the remainder of the season.

If, at the end of the season, Luce has developed into another $30,000 ball player, Joe probably will keep him.

On the other hand, if Luce looks like so much lost motion, Engel returns Luce to the Reds and takes the $5,000.

And what do you think?

You Can't Win Engel had a highly responsive audience after the recent All-Star game and related one of the best umpire-player gags of the season.

It seems the batter strenuously objected to a called strike.

"That wasn't a strike!" he stormed at the plate umpire.

"Bet you two bucks it was," the brother in blue replied, snappily.

Thanks, Jackson We have heard numerous compliments on the series of stories our Mr. Charlie Roberts has started on men who have done a great deal to promote athletics in Atlanta—men who have done a great job and remained more or less in the background.

Jack Perkins' letter is typical of the sentiments expressed and, let us hasten to add, that the series will be a regular feature of the Sunday sports section

Here's the letter:

"Dear Jack:

"As I probably come in contact with most amateur fans and competitors in the city I thought I would drop you a line on the fine story by Charlie Roberts in last Sunday's paper about 'Rebel' Bell.

"Numerous people have mentioned the story to me and I think it was a fine tribute to one who has devoted most of his life in aiding Atlanta amateur sports.

"Hope that you will run more of these articles so others like 'Rebel' will know that their efforts are appreciated.

"Sincerely yours,

"JACK PERKINS.

Answers Questions and answers seem to be becoming more and more popular in sports, judging by the mail box and telephone. Here are a few more queries received recently, and the answers—

Louise Suggs Barely Misses Ace in Match

A few more unusual shots in his foursome at Capital City yesterday and Pro Howard Beckett would have been talking to himself.

In the foursome were Dorothy Kirby, Louise Suggs and Ellen Butler, Savannah champion, "who hits the ball a mile."

Dorothy holed an eagle 3 with a mashie-niblick on the ninth hole. Louise knocked her tee shot into the 14th cup, but the ball jumped out. Ellen almost sank her third shot for a birdie at No. 16. And, oh, yes, Papa came out of the sand and into the cup for a par on the first hole after sending one shot out of bounds.

The honors were divided, all right. Every one had an unusual shot, and the Beckett-Butler team finished all square with the Kirby-Suggs combination.

Jimmy Harbison Passes Here at 44

Jimmy Harbison, president of the Georgia and Commercial amateur baseball leagues, died Friday morning at Georgia Baptist hospital after a brief illness. He was 44 years old.

One of the oldest sporting goods salesmen in point of service in Atlanta, Harbison was also known among hunters and fishermen throughout Georgia, and was an expert at trapshooting.

He organized basketball and baseball leagues among Atlanta's amateurs, and was one of the most popular officials with the players. He formerly played amateur baseball here.

A pioneer in increasing interest in basketball in this vicinity, Jimmy first brought down "Chuck" Taylor to hold basketball clinics in prep schools here in 1924 and 1925.

Dugas Wallops Two Homers In Final of Series

Nashville Gets 7 Runs in 5th; Smokies on Tap Today.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 12.—A big fifth inning, which yielded seven runs on four hits, three walks, a hit batsman, a wild pitch and one error, enabled the Vols to defeat Atlanta here tonight, 12-7, in the series final.

The setback dropped the Crackers to three games behind the league leaders and gave Nashville the series, three games to one.

Both clubs rapped out a dozen blows as the starting pitchers, Emil Lochbaum and Lefty Lee Rogers, failed to last five innings. Ace Adams was effective in the relief role, curbing the Crackers with three runs. He struck out nine.

MAILHO CONNECTS.

Gus Dugas clouted home runs in the first and third innings to lead the Vol attack on Lochbaum. Emil Mailho opened the first inning with a four-bagger over the right-field screen.

The Crackers open a three-game series tomorrow in Knoxville with a single afternoon game against the Smokies.

Emil Mailho's home run over the right-field screen after Anderson had walked staked the Crackers to a two-run lead in the first inning.

Nashville got one in its half of the first when Lochbaum walked Hockett and Mihalic after getting the count to 3-2 and Rocco singled Hockett home.

Three more Vol tallies came in the second on Gus Dugas' homer, singles by George and Culler, Hafey's error on Rogers' sacrifice and Hockett's infield out.

Nashville's fifth run came in the third inning when Dugas dingdonged "Cousin" Lochbaum for another homer.

The Crackers grabbed two tallies in the 4th when Lochbaum singled with the bases full, kayoing Rogers and bringing in Ace Adams.

BIG ROUND.

Lochbaum retired in the fifth in favor of Lewis Carpenter after the bases had been filled on Hafey's error, Rocco's single and a hit batsman (Boken), one run crossing on Lochbaum's wild pitch just before his exit. Carpenter walked Dugas and George Culler singled, Adams walked, Moser and Rocco singled for a total of seven runs before the big round ended.

Suydam's double and Carpenter's single netted Atlanta a run in the sixth. Tom Hafey homered after McQuillen had doubled for two more in the seventh. There was no further scoring.

Bud Ward Beats Goodman, One Up

MINNEAPOLIS, July 12.—(AP)—Bud Ward, of Spokane, today proved he was of the stuff champions are made of when neither pine tree, a bush nor such a golfing figure as Johnny Goodman, of Omaha, could keep him from entering the semi-finals of the 42d western amateur tournament at the Minneapolis Golf Club.

The national amateur champion spilled Goodman, one up, after the pine tree cost him a hole at a crucial moment, while the bush nearly permitted his opponent to pull up even late in the match.

That was but one of three spectacular quarter-final matches, with Jim Ferrier nosing out Wilford Wehrle 2 up and George Victor defeating Earl Larson 1 up. The fourth match found Harry Todd, defending champion, crushing Bill Kostelecky, 6 and 4.

FIRST TARPON—A Brunswick woman fishing enthusiast, Mrs. Alton Perry, landed the first tarpon of the season on the Georgia coast while fishing off Jekyll Island Wednesday. The sport fish caught weighed 90 pounds. Mr. Perry is at the right.

Brunswick Woman Catches First Tarpon of 1940 Season

Mrs. Alton Perry Wins Fight With 90-Pounder Which Jumps 14 Times in St. Simons Sound.

By JOHN MARTIN.

The Old Salt has argued over the air and off the air that "there are tarpon out there" in the Big Blue Drink off the Georgia coast. The Old Salt is a radio personality (WTOC, Savannah) and columnist (Outdoor Georgia) who has a following that will rival that of the giggle and gurgle shows over some of the national hookups.

He offered $25 to the first fisherman who proved his claim that tarpon off Georgia are gamer and just as big as the silver kings farther south.

CLAIM PROVED.

Just a day after a 90-pounder hit and missed his getaway came the news of the first silver king catch of the season in the very waters which the Old Salt called ripe "tarpon territory." And backing up the story was the photographic evidence.

The winner was a woman. Mrs. Alton H. Perry, of Brunswick, was the feminine angler who helped strengthen the women's claim that they are the better fishermen.

Her 90-pound tarpon was taken Wednesday on half-ebb tide in St. Simons sound, between St. Simons island and Jekyll island, home of the big channel bass.

Few tarpon jump more than four or five times, but Mrs. Perry's prize arched his great body clear of the brine 14 times before giving up the fight. The battle lasted 30 minutes.

The catch was no fluke, either. Tarpon have been having picnics in these waters for the past two weeks and many have been sighted. Mr. and Mrs. Perry rigged up for a fight last Monday. They had two strikes and no luck. They had five strikes by 75-100-pounders without a connection on Tuesday. But on Wednesday Mrs. Perry's No. 9 Von Hofe tarpon hook did its stuff, behind a piece of cut mullet.

AFTER ANOTHER.

The Perrys were back after another tarpon yesterday.

And for you other fishermen—U. S. Highway No. 15 leads to Georgia's land of the tarpon. Never mind the distance.

SMOKIES WIN IN 9TH.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 12.—(AP)—Buck Stanton, who was reinstated only yesterday from a 10-day injured player suspension, singled to center with two men out in the ninth inning today to drive in Buck Ramsey with a run that gave Knoxville a 3-to-2 victory over Chattanooga and the series at two to one.

John Hubbell was touched for three of the five hits he yielded in the second frame to account for the Lookouts' two runs. Thereafter he was master of the situation until he retired in the eighth for a pinch hitter. Paul Smith finished and got credit for the win.

UNDER WHICH FLAG?

("Under which king, Besonian? Speak, or die.")

There is one land—one flag—for all who roam,
Who live and work and dream and dare and die.
One land—one flag—one place that one calls home,
Above all others under God's far sky—
There is no second choice in days of storm
When the stark fury of the gale drives through.
There is no second choice where legions form
To guard the dreams and faiths our fathers knew.

This is the land we love—we helped to make
For liberty and light, for hope and dreams,
From the tall uplands to the valley's lake,
From the wide plains to all our hills and streams.
Why should we harbor traitors in our cast?
Or skulking schemers where our banners fly?
The storm is on—the surf is breaking fast—
"Under which king, Besonian? speak, or die."

Seibert Robs Feller of No-Hitter

Single in 8th Only Safety Off Indians' Star

Cleveland Boosts Lead With 1-0 Victory Over Athletics.

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—(AP) Bobby Feller held the Athletics to one hit tonight—a single by Dick Siebert in the eighth inning—to give the league-leading Cleveland Indians a 1-to-0 victory.

Feller outpitched Rookie Johnny Babich to chalk up his 14th victory of the campaign before 8,104 chilly fans.

For seven innings Feller pitched no-hit ball. Al Brancato, who walked with two down in the fourth, was the only Mackman to reach first until Siebert singled to center to start the eighth.

With two down Feller then walked Al Rubeling and both men advanced on a wild pitch. However, Feller bore down and whizzed three strikes past Pinch-Hitter Chubby Dean to end the A's only threat.

Altogether Feller struck out 13 batters.

Babich, seeking his eighth win, held Cleveland to six hits. The Indians' lone tally came in the third on doubles by Ben Chapman and Lou Boudreau. Twice, with men on second and third, he retired Hal Trosky to end Cleveland threats.

The victory increased Cleveland's lead over the idle Detroit Tigers to one full game.

COMMERCIAL LEAGUE.

Undefeated Dixisteel baseball club will defend its record this afternoon at Glenn field against Merita Bakeries as the Atlanta Commercial league teams get under way after a week's layoff. Bitter enemies since the league was first organized, the clubs will put everything they have into the game. Dixisteel won the first-half title with but one loss in the 11 games and are undefeated so far this half. The Bakeries have won one and lost one to hold second place in the standings along with five other teams. All games will start at 3:30 o'clock.

THE SCHEDULE.

Central Cafe vs. bye.
Gas Company vs. Georgia Power at S. W. Piedmont. Umpires, Patrick and Fowler.
White Provision vs. Berean Class at Mozley Park. Umpires, Garner and Street.
Merita vs. Dixisteel at Glenn field. Umpires, Shi and Herron.

GEORGIA LEAGUE.

General Shoe, first-half champions of the Georgia Amateur Baseball League, will tackle the undefeated Simmons Bed nine at Almand park this afternoon in the feature game of the league. General Shoe is in a four-way tie for second place as the league meets for the third time this half after rain held up two weeks of play. All games will start at 3:30 o'clock.

THE SCHEDULE.

Speedway Oil vs. Bricklayers at N. E. Piedmont. Umpire, Brown.
General Shoe vs. Simmons Bed at Almand Park. Umpire, Florrid.
N. A. Pep Class vs. Panthersville, at Panthersville. Umpire, Lyle.

SUNDAY GAME.

Central Cafe baseball club, of the Atlanta Commercial Amateur Baseball League, will meet the fast Silvertown team, of Thomaston, at Bishop's stadium Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in what promises to be one of the best games scheduled on the Cafe diamond this season. Central Cafe has a splendid record in the Commercial league this year.

AMATEUR FEDERATION.

The toughest melee on tap in the Atlanta Amateur Baseball Federation today is the one between Fulton Bag, unbeaten in the second half of the Textile League flag chase, and Whittier Mills, first half gonfalon winner, on the latter's diamond. This one should be a natural.

Riverdale and Southern Railway clash at Grant park in the best scheduled game in the Scott League. Riverdale upset the first half pennant-winning National Biscuit team a couple of weeks ago, and the Railroaders, who finished in second place last half, are unbeaten this round.

Three tough tilts are slated in the Atlanta League, which is so well balanced that any team is capable of trimming any of the others on a given day. Hapeville and Fickett Brown tied for the first half pennant, but the Fulton Bees, Ansley Hotel, Arrow Shirts and State Highway have all come up with stouter nines, which bid fair to make a typical "National League race" out of it this half.

Today's Schedules.

Sharp SHOOTIN' by AL SHARP

STATE GOLF MEET COURSE REALLY TOUGH.

Few golf courses in the nation less than 6,300 yards long can boast of a record as high as 67.

Golfers seemingly have an unwritten law that course records should start at 66 and go down. They have spared few courses.

But the Idle Hour Country Club at Macon has a record of 67. The course is 6,101 yards long. Par is 70.

The record, par and yardage are waiting for players in the annual Georgia State Amateur Golf tournament to see what they can do about the whole business.

SHARP.

The tourney will start Tuesday with qualifying, continue Wednesday and Thursday with a round per day of match play, and end with two matches Friday and the finals Saturday.

If the tournament lasted 30 days, instead of five, it would make no difference, Macon golfers believe. The record would remain the same.

Only two men, you see, have been able to get around the Macon layout in 67 strokes. George Norrie, formerly pro at the club, and Arnold Blum, the 18-year-old Macon sharpshooter, who pulled the trick a couple of years ago, share the record.

That is not the only evidence of the course's toughness.

A few years ago, the Southeastern P. G. A. tournament was held at Idle Hour. The south's best pros played four days. No one broke 70.

In March, Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson played an exhibition match at the club. Nelson had a 71.

Charlie Miller, pro at Idle Hour now, has not played the course a lot, having gone there a few months ago. But the best Charlie has done so far is a 68.

Miller has done quite a bit of big league tournament playing. He is known for the distance he gets, and birdies seem to flock to him. Still, Charlie has had a 68.

If there happens to be a man on the jury not convinced, take the testimony of Peyton Jones, president of Idle Hour. He feels sure the record won't be touched, and he would not be surprised if par remains intact.

On the other side of that opinion is Keith Conway, of Atlanta, who has an idea one of the competitors will wrap par in a neat bundle.

Be that as it may, the toughness of the Idle Hour course will add interest to the tourney. A record of 67 gives the fellows something to shoot at.

They will look at the card and wonder why a 67 is low. At least, par-4 holes which are not 400 yards long look easy on a card.

But the scorecard doesn't carry a picture of the woods, out-of-bounds, narrow fairways and traps.

Macon golfers think players will carry a complete set of such pictures in their minds after taking a crack at the tricky layout.

Anyway, there will be a lot of folks looking forward to seeing what the state's leading shooters can score.

They haven't had a shot at Idle Hour since 1923.

While you're watching the parade, keep your eyes open for the aforementioned Blum, of the University of Georgia.

He had a 70 and a 69 last Sunday, and he doesn't plan any let-up.

Dahlbender, Yates Off To State Meet

Dan Yates, defending champion in the annual Georgia amateur golf tournament, and Gene Dahlbender, 16-year-old Atlantan who won the medal in the southern, left yesterday for Macon, where they will get in a few tune-up rounds before the state tourney starts Tuesday.

Yates beat Sonny Swift, Columbus youngster, in the finals of the state tourney at Sea Island last year. Both are expected to shoot in the competition at the Idle Hour Country Club this time.

Carling Dinkler Jr. also left for the tournament yesterday.

Rookie Olson Hurls 5-Hitter As Cubs Win

Phillies Top Pirates on Art Mahan's Single With 3 On.

CHICAGO, July 12.—(AP)—Verne Olsen, rookie southpaw, set the Boston Bees down with five hits today to give the Chicago Cubs a 2-to-0 victory before a ladies' day crowd of 16,000.

Olsen's sinker ball baffled the invaders throughout, but his seven bases on balls kept Boston in the game. The yearling pitcher, however, was effective in the pinches, leaving 12 runners stranded on the bases. He also struck out seven batters.

Bill Posedel yielded only six hits to the Cubs, but hicago bunched two of these for a run in the third inning.

The Bees were unable to get a good cut at Olsen's low-ball pitching, hitting only three flies to the outfield, all to Right Fielder Bill Nicholson.

Kayak II Tops Speedy Field At Hollywood

LOS ANGELES, July 12.—(AP)—Two stars of the Charles S. Howard racing stables, Kayak II and Mioland, come off the shelf tomorrow for the first time this summer and go postward in separate events at Hollywood park.

Kayak, making his first start since he ran second to his famous stablemate, Seabiscuit, in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap last March, runs against a select field of eligibles for the approaching $50,000 Gold cup. Mioland bumps into a crack array of three-year-olds pointing toward the $25,000 Hollywood Derby next Saturday.

Arrayed against Kayak II in overnight entries announced today were the Valdina Farms' Viscounty, A. A. Baroni's Specify, Louis B. Mayer's Beautiful II, George Stratton's Hysterical and the Greenfield Farm's Gentle Savage.

Styled the Argonaut handicap for a purse of $10,000, the race is at a mile and one-sixteenth.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 12.—(AP)—Red Burman, hard-hitting New Yorker, dropped Bob Michaels, of Atlanta, for the count after two minutes and two seconds of the first round of their scheduled 10-round bout here tonight. Both fighters weighed 197 pounds.

FIERY ROLE—Olivia de Havilland, playing a fiery role, appears in the lead of "My Love Came Back," in the Fox theater's midnight show tonight.

Film Starring Davis, Boyer Termed Best

'All This and Heaven Too' Is Story of Suppressed Love.

By LEE ROGERS,
Motion Picture Editor.

"All This and Heaven, Too," the screen play at the Fox, will for many be better than the Rachel Field novel from which it was taken. Restrainly told and refraining from succumbing to the movie axiom to kiss, kiss, kiss to show emotion of the heart, it is the best film offered on an Atlanta screen this week and one of the year's best.

Enlightening from a sociological standpoint and interesting in its process of enlightenment is "Girls of the Road," which has come unheralded to the Rialto. "Remember the Night" offers Barbara Stanwyck and Fred MacMurray in a bitter-sweet romance at the Paramount, which has been slightly butchered in the making.

Those are the only new shows which opened yesterday.

DAVIS, BOYER STAR IN DRAMA OF LOVE

The top-ranking emotional actress of the screen, Bette Davis, has been teamed with the No. 1 male sex appeal, Charles Boyer, in a story of suppressed love which is dramatically conveyed by the two artists through looks, conversation and mannerisms, but with "nary" a kiss in the two hours and 23 minutes of pent-up emotions through which "All This and Heaven, Too" runs.

This Fox theater feature, made by Warner Brothers, is a film which I think the women will enjoy and appreciate more than the men, but probably the only difference in the measurement of enjoyment will be that the girls will get a good cry while the men will again think tears too undignified.

Excellent support is given by Barbara O'Neill as the insanely jealous wife of Duc (Boyer) and by Virginia Weidler as the daughter of the Duke and Duchess who loves her governess (Miss Davis) better than her mother. Jeffrey Lynn is the young minister and Walter Davenport is the old family servant.

The story is based on the romance of a French Duke and the governess of his children. Theirs is a suppressed love, but when the Duchess is killed, the populace of France rises up against the aristocracy which permits illicit love affairs such as they believe existed between employer and employe.

This is the romance which overthrew a kingdom. Bette Davis was never better than in the court scene, in which she pleads her innocense—successfully. She is the girl against the world. The woman whose questionable past follows her even into the fashionable girls' school of New York where she tries to start anew.

SOCIAL PROBLEM PRESENTED VIVIDLY

"Girls of the Road," at the Rialto, enjoys the distinction of presenting a social problem and its solution vividly enough to command serious thought, but lightly enough to be enjoyable relaxation fare.

The cast is chiefly made up of girls, as might be expected. Ann Dvorak, as the governor's daughter who joins a girl hobo jungle in an effort to find a solution to their problems, has the principal role. Lola Lane appears as the boss of the jungle, and Helen Mack is the lovable little tramp who knows the road of hard knocks and befriends the governor's daughter on her venture.

Miss Mack completely steals the picture. She is active, ready to fight for her rights, witty and as limber as an acrobat as she swings from moving freights or to moving trucks with equal ease.

Concerned in the film is the plight of the girl hoboes, who are forced on the road and once there are unable ever to obtain legitimate work. Action includes fights, murders, car wrecks.

MAGAZINE STORY REDUCED TO FILM

Barbara Stanwyck and Fred MacMurray star in "Remember the Night," at the Paramount, a story taken from one of the popular slick magazines.

The time is Christmas Eve. MacMurray, a hard-hearted district attorney, succeeds in getting his case against Miss Stanwyck, a thief, postponed when he sees the jury ready to acquit because it's Christmas. Remorseful later, he gets a friend to put up her bail so she won't be in jail over Christmas. The friend brings her to the D. A.'s department.

Eventually, Fred decides to take her home with him for Christmas, telling his mother, Beulah Bondi, he's going to send the girl to prison on his return to New York. As expected, they fall in love. He tries to throw the case to get her acquittal. She refuses to let him and pleads guilty.

If it hadn't been brutally handled in the making and in the editing, it might have been an interesting fantasy.

Britain Halts Plans To Move Child Refugees

Not Enough Warships to Act as Convoys, Says Announcement.

LONDON, July 12.—(AP)—The "postponement" of the scheduled removal of British children to the dominions and the United States was formally announced tonight by the ministry of information. The reason given was that not enough warships were available to act in convoys.

(Some time ago suggestions were heard in the house of commons that the United States should provide the necessary escort.)

"In view of the fate of the Arandora Star (a British prison ship torpedoed by the Germans with the loss of more than 1,000 German and Italian lives) the government is unable to take the responsibility of sending shiploads of children away from the country without convoy," the announcement said in part.

"Children sent apart from the government scheme will be allowed to leave either at their parents' risk or at the risk of the voluntary associations which have arranged for their transport."

TWO SUBMARINES THREATEN REFUGEES

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT, July 12.—(AP)—Persons landing from liners which brought nearly 2,000 British children to a refuge in Canada said today that two submarines approached the ships during the trip and that one was believed to have been sunk by an escorting warship.

TWO U. S. LINERS SAIL WITH REFUGEES

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)—America's largest liners, the sister ships Washington and Manhattan, nosed their way across the Atlantic tonight toward the United States, bearing more than 2,000 American citizens from Europe's war zones, on special voyages arranged by the State Department.

THE MORTAL STORM

Against the Others' Wishes, Freya Insists That She Is Going With Hans

By PHYLLIS BOTTOME.

SYNOPSIS.

Against the wishes of her Nazi stepbrothers, Freya Roth invites to her home Hans Breitner, a young Communist who has rescued her from a group of angry peasants during one of her skiing expeditions and to whom, despite his philosophy she has been immediately attracted. When Hans is attacked by Olaf and Emil as well as by Freya's aristocratic admirer, Fritz Maberg, Freya's disgust of the Nazi regime grows. Visiting the estate of Fritz's parents, long friends of the Roths, Freya is pursued by young Mayberg. Instantly she admits that she is in love with Hans, much to Fritz's horror. Aware that it has long been the plan of the Mabergs and the Roths for Freya and Fritz to marry, Freya goes to his mother, the Grafin von Maberg, and tells her that he will not marry Fritz. The Grafin, already vaguely apprehensive because Freya is half-Jewish, pretends to understand Freya's attitude toward her son. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT XXX.

"It is not right, Schatz," Hans said despairingly, "you should not ask it. I beg you to stay here with my mother. You are all I have—why should you be risked? Freya, be reasonable! Be kind to me! Stay with my mother!"

Karl and Seppel looked at her sternly—to them, what she asked was worse than useless. It disturbed their pleasure in her. Here was a girl trying to be a man—she had a man's courage in her eyes—but how could she bear a man's dangers, and a man's hardships? They were offended with her for being willing to try. Michael alone understood Freya. He nodded his heavy head over and over again, seeking for words to explain that what Freya wanted was merely what any good dog wants—to follow her master. Even his lamb followed Michel with its eyes, although owing to its legs' being still too rickety, it could hardly stand. Anna spoke harshly, for she had no very warm feelings for a beautiful girl whose lover was not running away from her, but merely from the Nazis. "You'll get him caught!" she said angrily, "when you fall behind, he'll fall behind! And you'll fall behind at the first obstacle! Why, you can't lift the pigs' food! I saw you try this morning and it made me laugh to look at you. Nah! Nah! a Fraulein is no hand at a mountain!"

Anna's contemptuous words brought Hans over to Freya's side, he drew his flaxen eyebrows together in sharp protest. "Freya can climb and ski better than any peasant girl I ever say," he declared stiffly. "It is not for my safety I want her to stay behind—but for her own! If we ran across any Nazis—and they did not actually imprison her—they would send her to a concentration camp for a hostage—she doesn't know what that means for a girl! Mein Gott, Freya—these are not men! They are devils!"

But Freya would not give in—something stubborn in her heart made an implacable protest—not even to save the pain in her lover's eyes, could she give up this last journey with Hans. Their words beat on her, without reaching the inner core of her resistance. Slowly the golden light grew thin, and they gave up talking.

Frau Breitner rose stiffly and went inside with Anna to pack Hans' rucksack.

What he would need most had to be chosen and condensed into as small a space as possible, and who knew what he might not need before work was found? Yet the rucksack must not be too heavy. All day long his mother had been thinking of what Hans would most need, and now this silly wilfulness of Freya's disturbed her thoughts and set them flurrying. "You should not think of what you want—you should think only of what is best for Hans," Frau Breitner said coldly, before she went into the kitchen.

When the door closed after her Freya found Karl's eyes grown more resentful than ever, fixed upon her. "Hans," Karl said harshly, "this girl should obey you if she loves you! You should not give way to her whims. Such a wife is useless to any man!"

Seppel of the Gaudeamus Hutte twisted his sun-blackened hands together in great discomfort. "She is a better comrade than you know," he said earnestly. "She is no stranger to our mountains—but, Fraulein, it is not your skill or your muscles that count with us against you. We must do our job—and we don't want to have to protect you—or to desert you. We daren't run any extra risks of being seen, whatever happens to Hans, or to you. We must hide—not for our own sakes, but for the party's—and our farms. It is shameful for a man to leave a girl in danger, but if you come with us, you must take your chance like a man!

"I have taken 20 comrades safely over and I must live to take as many more as I can. Karl, too, has to think of other lives than his own. You see, you make it harder for all three of us, if you come!"

"If I could force her — I would not," Hans said, without looking at Freya, "but it goes hard with me, to think of her in danger! I did not want Karl to come, but that I cannot help—he is my brother."

"I am more than your brother," Freya said, earnestly looking at them each in turn. "I am everything but name—your wife!"

"Trouble her no more," Hans said, letting his head fall for a moment between his hands. "Let her come if she chooses! She is my wife!"

"It is her heart and his wishes that I am carrying in my body," Freya obstinately told herself, "even though he is afraid of me, he longs for me! What is there to be afraid of while we are together? When we are separated we can think again of danger!"

None of them protested any more. They gave her food and drink with the men though the women took nothing themselves. Anna, without being asked, lent Freya her boots and skis. Franz and his goats came in, leaning against Hans' knees he drank a glass of warm milk from the cow, and with a cheery "Schlaf wohl!" staggered off, already half asleep, to bed.

Michel and his dog escorted them as far as the shrine, and then turned back.

Hans' mother did not come even so far; she stood on the balcony with Anna beside her, until their figures melted into the dusk.

Looking back, Freya could still see Frau Breitner, standing like a black pillar against the dying light.

Your Own Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—During the entire day and until 8:21 p. m. favors work that is of an original nature, and that requires much independence of action. A vacation started today should prove happy from a social standpoint. The influence after 8:21 p. m. are not so favorable, and therefore if you are planning a trip, try and start before 8:21 p. m.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—The morning hours until 11:16 a. m. favor domestic affairs, beauty, art and planning social entertainments. After 11:16 a. m. favors financial transactions, real estate deals, and this is an auspicious time to make moves or changes around the home.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Previous to 10:40 a. m. favors the lesser matters of life. The entire day is filled with influences that may bring confusion, uncertainties and indecisions, making this an unfavorable period for putting forth ambitious schemes or expecting full co-operation from others.

June 21st and July 22d (CANCER)—The day favors matters of art, beauty, sociability and dealings with women. After 3:23 p. m. use especial care in agreements, in trading and travel.

July 23d and August 22d (LEO) Previous to 3:24 p. m. avoid risks, for good judgment seems to be lacking. After 3:24 p. m. favors travel and agreements.

August 23d and September 22d (VIRGO)—Before 10:32 a. m. avoid being hasty or impulsive. From 10:32 a. m. and throughout the remainder of the day, be ready to promote changes, putting aggressive action behind whatever you may have in mind, and if you have some long standing matters that are unfinished, today is an excellent time to complete them. The evening hours suggest caution in travel and liquids.

September 23d and October 22d (LIBRA)—The entire day favors working on old ideas, dealings with anything that relates to your personal possessions, whether financial or otherwise, social affairs and artistic matters.

October 23d and November 21st (SCORPIO)—Previous to 1:31 p. m. does not favor dealings with those in authority or who hold executive positions. The remainder of the day favors travel, communications, interviews, buying and selling, but is not favorable for obtaining the best results in social matters.

November 22d and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—The day favors matters relating to real estate, also work that requires speed to bring a success. After 5:57 p. m. favors affability and those things that call for pleasantness.

December 22d and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—The day favors general finances, contacting superiors, dealings with women, but unusual care should be observed around firearms and in industrial works.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—Personal affairs and interests of a wider scope may have a tendency towards strain, animosity, or you may be inclined to overdo, therefore the day does not especially favor new beginnings.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—Previous to 2:49 p. m. is the better part of the day, when you should make every effort to get conditions set in motion for progress. After 2:49 p. m. favors appointments, meetings, conference, public matters and social activities.

Georgia's First Woman Bar Member Dies

Mrs. Minnie Hale Daniel Fought for Five Years for License.

Mrs. Minnie Hale Daniel, who led the fight to permit women to practice law in Georgia and became the first of her sex ever admitted to the state bar, died yesterday at a private hospital. She was in her early sixties.

Long-time dean of Georgia women lawyers, she was the founder and first president of the Georgia Association of Women Lawyers, and the Atlanta Woman Lawyers' Club.

Born in Talladega, Ala., she came to Atlanta in 1896, the young bride of James E. Hale, a wholesale grocery merchant. With him she lived the peaceful life of a young wife, the idea of becoming a lawyer far from her thoughts.

First Graduate.

In 1907, however, the death of her husband left her with a small child to support, and it was then she determined to study law.

She was graduated in 1911 from an Atlanta law school, the first woman in the state ever to win a bachelor of laws degree. She presented her application to the court for permission to enter the bar. It was refused.

Thus began a fight that was to take five years to win, that was to bring her state-wide fame, and prepare the way for the hundreds of women who now practice law in Georgia.

Tried Five Years.

For five years she appeared before the general judiciary committee of the general assembly time and again. Time after time she saw her bill defeated. Innumerable times she heard caustic legislators denounce women lawyers as a menace to Georgia womenkind, and sarcastically remind her that the place of women is in the home.

At last, however, her efforts were successful, and in 1916, the bill she had authored was enacted into law, with but one dissenting vote. Governor Nat Harris signed the bill with a silver pen.

In the years that followed Mrs. Daniel became one of the city's best known lawyers. She specialized in real estate law, but on occasions handled divorce cases and even ventured into criminal law.

Continued Campaign.

After her first bill had become law, she continued to labor for the rights of her sex, and it was partly through her work and efforts that women students were admitted to the University of Georgia.

She was one of the organizers of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, an organizatin that in recent years has come to wield tremendous influence with political office-holders, and she was a charter member of the Atlanta Music Club.

She practiced law actively until 1927 when she married L. J. Daniel, partner in the old firm of Daniel Brothers Clothing Company. After his death in 1930, she retired entirely from her profession.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Ernest L. Rodgers; two sisters, Mrs. Edgar Lightcap, of New York, and Mrs. B. S. Tutwiler, of Birmingham; and three brothers, Tom Anderson, of Birmingham; and Guy and Ralph Anderson, of New York City.

Private funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill with Dr. Ryland Knight officiating. Burial will be in Talladega, Ala.

Firms in State Win Wage Stay

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP)—The United States court of appeals stayed today for 27 textile firms an order by Colonel Philip B. Fleming, wage-hour administrator, fixing minimum wages in the apparel industry.

The order established minimum wages of 32 1-2, 35, 37 1-2 and 40 cents an hour for employes engaged in the manufacture of wearing apparel for men, women and children.

The stay was granted pending final decision by the court on a petition for review of the order.

The court's stay affected only the firms which petitioned.

Among them were the Southern Garment Manufacturers' Association, Inc., Nashville, Tenn.; the Allen Overall Company, Charlotte, N. C.; Barroe Manufacturing Company, Winder, Ga.; Belgrade Manufacturing Company, Winder; J. H. Bonck Company, New Orleans; Burroughs & Taylor, Doyle, Tenn.; Carwood Manufacturing Company, Winder; Empire Manufacturing Company, Winder; Eureka Manufacturing Company, Shelbyville, Tenn.; Fly Manufacturing Company, Shelbyville; Happ Brothers Company, Macon, Ga.; Haspell Brothers, Inc., New Orleans; Charles W. 12th Consecutive Rainy Day Seen

"The end is not yet in sight."

This cryptic remark, made last night by Forecaster George Mindling, refers to the state of the weather and predicts that Atlanta today will have its twelfth consecutive day of showers.

"Of course," he added, "it won't rain all day. Most of the time it will be cloudy and tonight it may be a little cooler. Extremes will be from 68 to 82 degrees."

According to official dispatches a "cold front" is advancing from the central states into New England and the Atlantic seaboard and may, eventually, drive the southern rain out to sea. This, however, is not a promise.

Packard Agrees To Make 9,000 Plane Motors

3,000 Will Be Built for U. S., 6,000 for Britain.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP)—The Defense Commission announced today that directors of the Packard Motor Company had approved a "general arrangement" for production of 9,000 Rolls-Royce airplane motors for the United States and Great Britain.

William S. Knudsen, defense production chief, said contracts were being prepared.

The announcement came after more than three weeks of negotiations on a contract which Henry Ford previously had declined to undertake on the ground that he would make munitions only for the United States.

The contract will cover 3,000 motors for the United States and 6,000 for Britain. It is understood to cover an expenditure by the two governments of about $150,000,000. Congress appropriated $43,500,000 for the American share.

RICH'S

Madeleine Carroll Selects Inexpensive Summer Cottons

By Sheilah Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, July 12.—The "new" Madeleine Carroll, meaning the slender Madeleine, goes in for inexpensive summer cottons that look extremely good against a garden party or country dinner background. She has a fragile white embroidered organdy gown with narrow black velvet ribbon beading. The dress features the new long torso silhouette, with a full, billowing skirt ending in a deep flounce of white organdy.

What the well-dressed secretary should wear this summer is demonstrated by Virginia Bruce, who plays George Brent's secretary in "The Sentence." Virginia's favorite is a tailored frock in turquoise silk corduroy with large pockets, a narrow patent belt, and a frilly jabot collar in cream satin.

Most of Miss Bruce's dresses show soft, high necklines, but one strays off the beaten track with a stiff, white uniform collar, very young and accented with a flowing Byronic tie. The dress is in beige camel hair cloth, is straight lined, and has a matching top jacket sporting 15 small leather buttons matched with her belt.

A turtle-necked black sweater has Virginia's monogram in white on one pocket. A string of white pearls is an added accent, and the sweater tops a slim black skirt . . . Red and white checked patent leather is used in a narrow belt and to band the top of the round, high neckline of a white crepe frock with pleated skirt and blousy bodice. Virginia's accessories are white, except for a huge red patent purse.

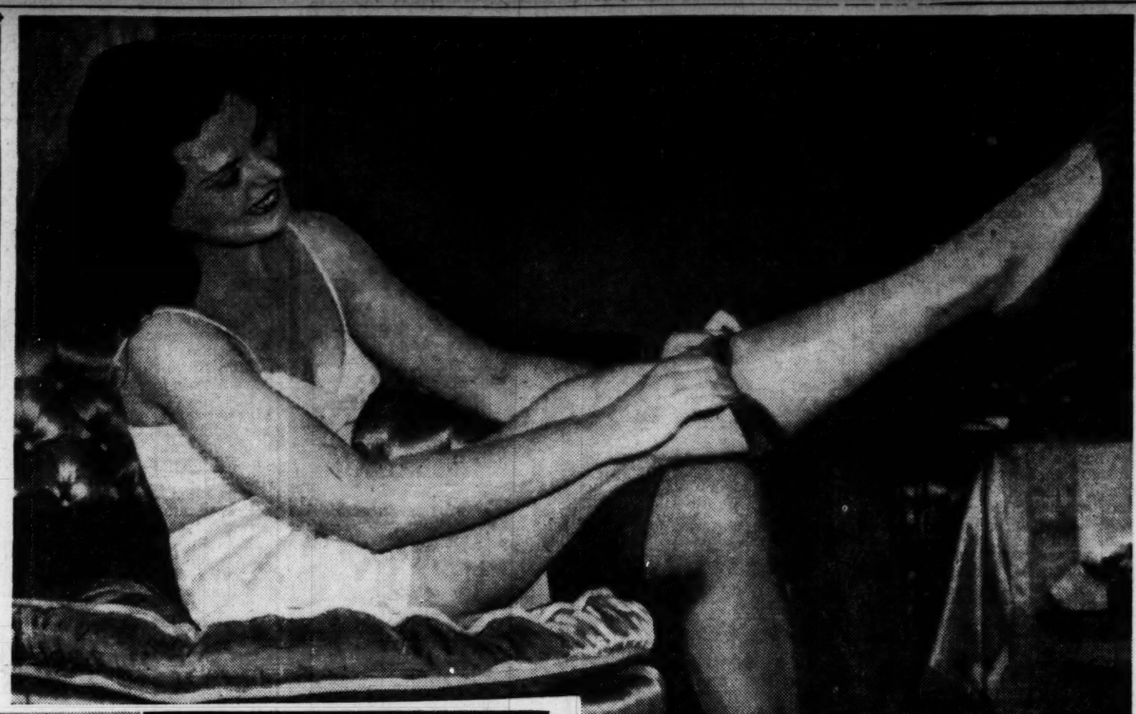

Hat foibles of the stars . . . Joan Crawford prefers shallow crowns, large brims with a slight dip in front . . . Hedy Lamarr likes high Russian toques . . . Myrna Loy goes in for little perky hats that look good with her upturned nose . . . Vivien Leigh—when she wears a hat—prefers tight-fitting, little-boy berets . . . Jeanette MacDonald likes the pirate sweep off-the-face chapeau in soft material.

Billie Burke owns the same sort of hats, but adds streamers, veils, or flowers. . . . Ruth Hussey can usually be seen in the classic sports hat, with semi-square crown and medium floppy brim. . . . The severer the hat, the more sure you are of finding Rosalind Russell's face underneath. . . . And if you can't see the face at all under the umbrella-size hat, you know it's Greta Garbo.

Bette Davis owns a slack suit with deep blue shantung trousers printed with small yellow pineapples. The trousers are matched in color with a silk shirt. And there's a sleeveless shantung bolero in yellow to which is hitched a small yellow fabric pineapple.

Summer and winter meet in a formal bouffant dress Olivia de Havilland designed for her own wardrobe. "First night" saw it at the Victor Hugo. The bodice is black taffeta, long and swatched like a drumhead, with huge back bow growing into streamers that fall to the bottom of the white organdy skirt. Olivia wears black taffeta roses in an upswept hair-do, and carries a black taffeta draw-string bag.

The shawl fashion has caught on in Hollywood, and Ann Sheridan is wearing a navy wool shawl with bright red fringe over the shoulders of her navy tailored suit. She throws one end over her shoulder and clips it with a simple pin. For evening my lady "Oomph" has a miniature Spanish shawl in white with black embroidery, worn over a slim black crepe dinner gown—with low square neck and diamond clips.

We'll walk in color this fall. A Hollywood stylist designed the wine-red ultrasilk stockings which are shown at the World's Fair silk exhibit.

The heroine of the "silk fashion pantomime"—a feature of the silk exhibit at the World's Fair. Milady is wearing white crepe-back silk satin panties with border, side inserts and waistband of white hand-run lace matching her all-lace brassiere. Note the new "beige" hose. A new trend to modesty in silk night robes is this empire nightgown of heaven blue silk crepe with pleated bosom, oval neckline and lace border.

Modern Youths Seldom Fit Mould of Yesterday

By Caroline Chatfield.

There has probably never been a woman born into the world who didn't dream dreams and see visions of a husband who was a physical Hercules, a financial Croesus, an intellectual Socrates and a sentimental Mark Anthony. Presumably the men too are given to such daydreaming. It may be harmless indulgence in imaginative exercise, pleasurable while it lasts.

All these young people have sooner or later to face realty and deal with it. Economics is too deep for me. But many of these ugly realities are rooted in economics. The worlds of business and professions to which the men had exclusive rights have been invaded by the women. Why this happened is a moot point. What the final result will be is also a moot point. But everybody knows that as responsibility is put upon the men they grow stronger and as they are relieved of it they grow weaker. The majority of young men are not earning enough to support wives in the manner to which the earning girl has accustomed herself to live. This makes the men a bit hesitant about popping the question. They run along enjoying feminine companionship, monopolizing the girls who are willing to be monopolized and Macawber-liwe waiting for something to turn up. While they are waiting they put in their spare time discussing what sort of wives they would like.

This attitude on the part of the men maddens the girls to frenzy. They have to be resigned to spinsterhood, or make the move toward matrimony with poverty, or toward matrimony on the 50-50 plan. A few hold out for marriage more akin to their ideals. A few give up.

While the men have been losing their prowess and their manly strength, the women have been losing something, too. They have lost their zest for and their belief in love—unless it carries with it some of the cushioned comforts they have accustomed themselves to. "Don't tell me about love in a cottage," said one of them recently, "unless the cottage has all the modern conveniences of the big house, including a servant."

So to all the maidens who are looking for men "to fit into their mould of thought" the word of advice is Don't expect to find a modern man that fits into a mould of thought inherited from mama and grandmama. The men are different. Girls are different, but the human heart remains the same throughout the ages: hungry for love and companionship. The realities of economics must be faced but love will give courage to face them.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Here Are a Few Common Falacies Concerning Diabetes

By Dr. William Brady.

Diabetes is not a disease of the kidneys, but a deficiency in the function of the islands of Langerhans, specialized groups of cells in the pancreas or abdominal sweetbread, and perhaps some associated deficiency in the function of the liver. Chronic nephritis develops ultimately in many cases of diabetes as a manifestation of arteriosclerosis. Arteriosclerosis is responsible for more than half of the deaths in diabetes today; has been demonstrated by X-ray in 90 per cent of cases of 10 years or more duration.

There is no ground for the notion that the sugar of honey or fruit or this or that special fruit or vegetable is more suitable for one with diabetes than plain cane sugar or common starch. So far as the nutrition of a healthy individual or a diabetic individual is concerned, there is no evidence that one form of sugar or starch is more digestible, more quickly available for energy or more beneficial in any way than any other form of sugar or starch.

If oatmeal, for instance, is better utilized by one with diabetes than things made of white flour—old-time physicians thought an oatmeal diet was superior for diabetics—it is not because the carbohydrate (starch or sugar) in oatmeal is better than the carbohydrate in white flour but, perhaps, because oatmeal is rich in vitamin B, in which white flour is poor, and vitamin B promotes better assimilation and utilization of carbohydrate, in the normal person and in the diabetic. It is a grave mistake to assume that one with diabetes "may eat" this and that and "may not eat" other items which contain sugar and starch. No one can live and thrive without a reasonable amount of sugar or starch, not even a diabetic. The important problem in every case of diabetes is to determine the patient's tolerance for carbohydrate—that is, how much he or she can utilize—and then arrange a diet which will provide that much carbohydrate and no more. This carbohydrate tolerance changes from time to time, and the successful treatment of diabetes demands periodic tests of carbohydrates tolerance and adjustments of the diet to suit the patient's tolerance.

Insulin is never habit-forming, as benighted persons sometimes imagine. It is the normal, indispensable secretion of the islands of Langerhans in the pancreas or "sweetbread" gland of a healthy individual, into the blood; it is as essential for the oxidation, combustion or conversion of carbohydrate into flue or energy as the ordinary secretion of the pancreas into the duodenum or intestine is for the digestion and absorption of food.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Development.

Our son, aged 10 years, has an undescended testicle—the doctor says it is still in the abdomen. He has received about six weekly injections of hormone, but so far no apparent affect. Should we continue with this treatment?

(S. K.)

Answer—I believe I'd wait until the boy reaches the age of 12. Then, if necessary, resume the injections. If testicle has not descended by the age of 13, operate.

Steady Nerves.

Something you said about the steadying effect on the nerves from calcium in nutrition appealed strongly. I am anxious to obtain any further information you may have along that line. You may not realize, but a good many of your colleagues watch your column pretty closely for the sound medicine they get in it.

(——, M. D.)

Answer—Thank you, Doctor. I belabor the point for all I am worth in the booklet, "Nerves and Nutrition," for copy of which send 25 cents coin and stamped envelope bearing your address.

Gay Fern Doilies Are Easily Woven on Cardboard 'Loom'

What daintier on your table than hand-woven fern doilies? They're of cotton yarn in cherry yellow—and they're as lovely in a delicate green or a soft blue.

You weave them easily on a cardboard circle, 11 1-2 inches across. Cut 34 notches around edge and between any two, a 35th notch.

Now, for the warp, paste yarn to center of circle, draw thread through a notch and around through adjacent notch, then across face of loom and through another two notches. Continue in this way till you've wound yarn through all notches.

Next thread needle with yarn and, starting at center, weave over and under the warp threads till you have 10 rows of weaving. For the "openwork" design—with needle and the same yarn pick up two warp threads and wind yarn around them five times—spirally down from the center. Continue, using always the next two warp threads to the right, till you have four spirals.

Now reverse on the next two warp threads, winding yarn up toward center, and so on to make four spirals. Continue winding: 4 down, 4 up; 6 down, 4 up—following this order three times. Then 4 down, 4 up, 5 down.

Now separate warp threads and weave four rows of spider web (simply making a loop around each warp thread).

Keep Abdominal Muscles Firm, Regardless of Age

By Ida Jean Kain.

A four-year-old tot of our acquaintance came out the other day with suprise question number 699. "Why is it," she demanded, "that robins and grandmas have big stomachs?"

For a fact, grandma would be better off for a little streamlining! The middle-aged spread just isn't healthy. We have it on medical authority that it may even be a cause of high blood pressure.

When the abdominal wall muscles become flabby, they not only collect fat but they are unable to support the weight of the organs so that they sag and crowd each other. This interferes with the circulation of the blood, the digestion and the elimination. Aside from the squeezing of the organs, the nerve centers are seriously affected and high blood pressure may result.

The notion that the stomach must be held in may be somewhat responsible for the tendency to accept the middle-aged spread as natural. But any idea that does not work is usually wrong, and this is no exception. The rule should be to hold up with the lower abdominal muscles. The upward pull which originates in the lower abdominal wall should extend right on up through the crown of the head so that the chest is lifted and the chin level. That's exercise in itself!

But before you can make a habit of this upward pull, the entire muscular girdle must be strengthened with corrective exercises. Whether you are fat or thin, young or old, you need a few of this type:

To avoid any strain, the initial exercises should be taken lying on the back on the floor with the knees flexed, feet on the floor.

From that position, bring alternate knees to chest as you press the small of the back against the floor and pull up and in with the lower abdominal muscles. Repeat 10 times in all.

Remaining in the same position, raise the feet slightly off the floor and spread the knees wide apart to form a V. Hold for a second, and bring the knees together. Repeat four times, then rest.

Now roll over and lie face downward on the floor with arms and legs fully extended.

Roll across the stomach, over on the side of one hip, back across the stomach, and over on the other hip, rolling eight times. Hold the feet slightly off the floor while rolling.

Still lying face downward, legs and arms fully extended, raise the right leg, cross it over the left and touch the toes to the floor. Keep the leg straight and point the toes hard. Alternate the legs, getting a good diagonal stretch each time. Repeat 10 times.

Fashion Talk Being Turned To Furs

By Tamara Andrews.

In the midst of all this heat, furs are already being talked about. Prominent designers are busy creating, and manufacturers making and showing collections of fall fur. . . . Important in these collections will be the "safari" and "matara" brown sealskin, caracul, side-saddle-draped coats; hooded mink coats; badger great-coats; fur coats with great patch pockets, bagpipe sleeves, and free-movement back. Sleeves will be very important, and you'll see a great many delightful new ones, such as telescope sleeves, watermelon sleeves, push-up sleeves, peasant, and lounge sleeves. The collars not to be outdone, will count among'em corkscrew collars, sandwich collars, double-exposure collars, cornucopia collars. And to top it all, you may expect fur flowers such as the Black Persian rose.

Cartwheels are back in favor. For evening it's the opera hat. For day-wear, it is a saucy big straw—shading the eyes, or off-the-face, angel-halo fashion. There are all kinds, to suit any taste and purse: huge-brimmed hats covered in the same material as your printed dress, or in contrasting color. Straws, felts, starched pique—as to variety, the sky is the limit. Why are we back to big hats? 'Cause fashion, like a pendulum, swings to extremes. First little skull-caps, then big hats. Also, they say, big brims protect that precious complexion from the sun—and freckles.

Women's silhouettes again on the "straight-and-narrow" while the little girl fashions feature flared skirts, and princess lines. . . . The Chesterfield model which has been the classic in coats for some time, still prevails, but the back now has a double inverted pleat after the manner of a gentleman's surtout of the nineties.

The casual's list is growing. Impeccably cut, but easy-to-wear (and certainly easy-to-look at) clothes are the keynote of the mid-season collections.

MY DAY: New Methods Needed In a Changed World

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY.—Lakeside, Ohio, where I spoke yesterday, is very like Chautauqua in New York state. It is run by the Methodist church people, and offers a religious program as well as many other types of educational and pleasurable entertainment. The location on Lake Erie is very beautiful and the opportunity for sports and out-of-door recreation must make it a haven for many families.

The auditorium holds about 4,000 people, but they have smaller auditoriums which are turned over to the young people for meetings. This is a favorite meeting place for groups of the Epworth League. The Northern Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs was holding its meetings there, and the head of the Toledo, Ohio, club came to see me.

Perhaps I am wrong in feeling that a great many of our women are still living in the world which they hope exists, rather than in the world which really does exist today. They are still talking of world peace and what we can do to bring about peace in the world, in the hope that it can be accomplished at the present time and in the same way that peace groups have worked for many years.

This is discouraging to me, for I feel that our situation in the world is so completely changed that old methods and old approaches must be changed in order to meet it. However, I hope sincerely that I am wrong and that we may not be facing as serious a situation as seems indicated by recent events.

I was impressed yesterday by the interest that people are taking in giving homes to refugee children. A young woman, who has started a nursery school in Toledo, came in to tell me that she would attempt to raise money to support a group of refugee children in her school, and she and her colleagues would donate their care. This seemed to me a very generous offer from a very small nursery school which is just getting on its feet. I hope she will be able to find people to sponsor some children, for she seems to have a very good plant.

Some members of the Sandusky Altrusa Club came in to present me with a very beautiful corsage bouquet. On every hand friendly people waited to greet me, which is always a pleasant experience.

We drove to Cleveland after the lecture, some 75 miles, but the road was good and we had an hour in a hotel to rest before we took a plane to New York city. This is the first time, I think, that I have been on a night plane and failed to see the sun rise, but I was so sleepy that it did not matter to me in the least when and how the sun rose. I slept until the stewardess awakened me to say that we would be in New York city in 15 minutes.

Today seems to me fairly warm and I shall be glad when our New York city appointments are over and we wend our way back to the country.

THESE WOMEN! -:- By d'Alessio

They Have Eyes---But Only for Selves

REFRESHING In these perilous days of eyes strained with watching for Death, it's good to see an oblivious couple with eyes only for each other. They're Dan Topping and the Mrs.—Sonja Henie.

Finds Uncle Sam Has Balked Practice Of 40 Years.

Your oversigned columnist, a former reviewer of picture shows, was insulted a few days ago.

By the United States government. And it still rankles in his bosom. His chest measure doesn't permit excessive rankling, but what rankling can find room is still rankling.

He was perambulating up Peachtree street when he observed on a theater marquee the names of a couple of stars of the cinematographic firmament.

"Aha," he quoth. "I shall stroll in and give them a critical eye."

The young man at the door was alabaster. Perhaps your correspondent means adamant. It's one of those bothersome words.

"Yes, I recall you perfectly," the doorman conceded. "But nevertheless and notwithstanding you'll have to get a pass."

"And just, how, may I ask," pursued your columnist, "does one go about getting a pass. For nigh on 40 years, man and boy, I've been walking into theaters and picture shows without a pass. In fact, I haven't laid eyes on a pass since Al G. Field's Minstrels played the Atlanta Theater."

"It's the government," he explained. "They got a man on the door watching out for the amusement tax."

"Call Eddie," ordered this writer, haughtily. "I'll show him."

Strangely, Eddie was accessible. As manager and friend he welcomed your correspondent to his palace of the cinema. But everybody, he said, great and lowly, must pay the amusement tax.

So he took us out in front, to the ticket booth, where the pretty blonde presides. Often your oversigned had been tempted to purchase a ticket to learn whether a smile went with it. The chance of a smile against 40 cents. And 40 cents, as you may have figured out for yourself, is four dimes. So this author resisted temptation.

Four Cents!

Eddie obtained for us a pass. The blonde said the tax would be four cents. The former reviewer forked over a nickel—and he still retains an impression that he never got his penny change. But he waved that aside.

The picture wasn't exciting. So, after 15 minutes, he strolled out. It was a high privilege to leave a picture flat with a clear conscience. A reviewer feels it is duty to stick around at least 20 minutes, in the hope something will happen.

But this is what disturbs this writer in the stilly hours of the night.

He paid four cents (disregarding that lacking cent of change) for a two-hour program. He saw only 15 minutes of it. Was he not entitled to a refund of three-and-one-half cents from a sordid federal government?

It may seem a minor matter, ladies and gentlemen. But continents have been shaken by minor matters. The tax on tea started the American Revolution.

The oversigned has been brooding on this subject. He intends to assert his rights.

He fully realizes that his friend Eddie has no control of the situation. But Eddie has contact with the government. If he hasn't enough influence Senator Russell and Congressman Ramspeck have.

If they can't get a prompt refund of the three-and-one-half cents a certain former picture reviewer is likely to swing his influence for Willkie. No threat is made or implied. But time will tell.

Anonymous.

Soft and melodious voice on the telephone. A woman's voice, of course.

"You were several years off about that automobile parade which marked the opening of the Great White Way," it said. "It was November 15—I won't mention the year. I was in it."

"How do you remember the date?" I asked. "It's insignificant."

"You wouldn't understand," said the voice. Such a lovely voice that I thought at first it was that of the Mistress of the Manor. "But there are some dates one never forgets. It was an important one in my life."

"Who is this speaking?" I asked.

"It wouldn't make any difference to you," said the voice. "Goodbye."

Nobody could be angry with a voice like that—a disembodied voice floating in over the wires.

But I do become incensed with many anonymous voices, as I do with writers of anonymous letters.

Most folk who have something nice to say sign their letters. People who disagree with me don't—or most of them don't.

Why? I don't profess to be infallible. I know I'm often wrong and oftener foolish and my stuff is frequently wastebasket stuff. But why should someone take the pains to write me—or the boss—a caustic and often well justified criticism and be afraid to sign his—or her—name?

It's taking an unfair advantage. It's one-sided. The writer addresses someone he knows or knows about. But I don't know the writer and can't answer back.

A telephone message may be like that. The person who calls knows when I answer the phone. He expresses himself fully. But when I ask: "Who is talking, please?" he hangs up or replies: "Oh, that wouldn't make any difference to you."

I'd like to ask: "Is that polite?"

Sees a Possible Psychological Blow At British Nerves.

Twenty-five days from its inception the battle of Britain (or rather, of England, for that is what it is) has atained such an intensity on two fronts that a new crisis in the war appears imminent.

The Germans are pressing the fight in the air and underseas. A nod from Adolf Hitler may soon disclose whether a third front is to flame into action in the form of a Nazi invasion or whether he will open a drive on a fourth front—a psychological assault on English nerves, on English will to prolong the battle.

Hitler's own whereabouts could furnish a clue to the next phase of the tragic drama. If he takes the field in conquered France it would sharpen expectation of invasion in England. It would again stress to all Germans Hitler's implied if not stated pledge at the outset of the war to ask his armies to take no risks he did not share.

If a fourth front German attack is in contemplation in the form of a dramatic last-moment peace gesture backed by the pistol-point threat of invasion, it must come from Hitler direct. No other German voice could give it authority in English ears sufficient to create political dissension in Britain paralleling that which led, in France, to complete capitulation.

Battle Defeatism.

There have been recent intimations that some such Hitler move as a final prelude to "all out" attack on England was anticipated in some British circles. Every recent word spoken for British ears by Prime Minister Churchill and his aides has had in it the clear purpose of counteracting any spread of defeatism in the nation's hour of greatest peril.

The continuing campaign in minority British political circles to drive Neville Chamberlain, former prime minister and symbol of the former "appeasement" sentiment, out of the Churchill war cabinet indicates a fear that defeatism still could precipitate an internal political crisis to snag defense plans.

Crushed France, regarbed in Fascist trappings, lies just across the channel, an object lesson which Hitler could point in urging Britain to escape the final horror of complete war by accepting terms, perhaps generous terms, before it is too late. Berlin's dinning claims of mounting submarine and air successes into British ears to foster public fear of starvation in England.

The mounting toll of civilian casualties from German day-and-night bombing raids cannot be concealed by censorship from the British public, yet Berlin contends she has thus struck only at military objectives and has made no ruthless effort to shatter English civilian courage.

No Way To Tell.

Censorship does conceal almost completely the actual military damage inflicted either in England or by British counter-raids against Germany. There is no yardstick by which to reconcile conflicting British and German reports of the price Germany is paying in planes shot down in action over England.

It is certain, however, that daylight bombing is a dangerous business, even when bombers from near-by bases in France are protected by fighter escorts. Britain's air force is outnumbered; but not yet outfought. Germany is far from attained that mastery of the air that would make invasion possible without German losses of staggering proportions. That is a factor even Hitler must weigh.

It is a factor, too, that would might urge him to attempt a dramatic fourth-front attack on British nerves, harrowed by weeks of bombing on a crescendo scale, in the hope of duplicating in England the political collapse in France that swept the Reynaud "fight-to-the-end" ministry and the third republic successively into the discard.

Parliamentary government is not dead in England, only in a state of voluntarily suspended animation. The same parliament that hustled Chamberlain into the discard presumably could rescind Churchill's dictatorial powers if the spirit of defeatism gained sway in the bomb-agonized nation. It is a point which Berlin strategists are not apt to overlook and which only English courage could answer finally.

BRITON DIVES U. S. PLANE AT 600 MILES PER HOUR

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)—An English test pilot for the British purchasing commission has dived an American plane at 600 miles and found it "very steady," the commission said today.

The pilot reported the wing flutter which appeared in similar tests on other planes was absent. He claimed it was superior to any German plane now in use.

The plane, on which the tests were recently made in this country, is a modified form of pursuit plane. Production on the new model is just getting under way.

Addition of 100 employes to the staff of the commission was also announced, thus bringing the personnel to 600. More office space has been obtained in an effort to speed dispatch of purchases to the highest possible rate.

City and County Reach Sewer Project Accord

Fulton, Federal Agencies To Bear Expenses of Completion.

The 18-month-old controversy between the city and Fulton county over financing completion of the metropolitan sewer system was believed settled yesterday, when county officials and Mayor Hartsfield signed a new six-point agreement.

Under the latest contract the county will back-fill the 96-inch giant sewer line known as Peachtree Project No. 1 for a distance of approximately 1,500 feet, and agree to sponsor in co-operation with WPA and PWA about 17 miles of new sewers, build a disposal plant costing about $100,000 and help pay engineering services.

A five-mile stretch of sewer line ranging from eight to 18 inches in diameter will be constructed in the Egan Park section and a 3,000,000-gallon-per-day capacity disposal plant will be installed to dispose of the sewage.

Six miles of pipe ranging from eight to 18 inches in diameter will be laid along Terrell creek, and in addition a 1,580-foot tunnel will be built for one stretch of the line.

Another six miles of sewer pipe ranging from 10 to 21 inches in diameter will be laid on Highland avenue, and the county will pay Wiedeman & Singleton, engineers on the sewer program, the remaining $1,200 owed for their services.

The city agrees to permit the county to tap certain of the main trunk lines without making any charge, and a co-operative program for maintaining and operating the system previously agreed on will remain in force as part of the latest agreement.

Several months ago Fulton county withdrew its force from the Proctor creek tunnel, the largest in the system, when it became apparent that remaining funds would not complete all the projects contemplated in the metropolitan program. This precipitated a break between the city and county governments over the system and the city supplemented what it had already provided for the services by another $45,000 to complete the tunnel.

The new agreement recognizes the additional expense incurred by the city in this project, and thus the county has undertaken to sponsor all the remaining work.

Actual work on the remaining projects will be undertaken as soon as WPA can start, the agreement signed yesterday pointed out.

HOBOKEN, N. J., July 12.—(AP) Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian playwright who wrote the celebrated "Blubird," arrived from Lisbon, Portugal, on the Greek liner Nea Hellas today, a war refugee. Jury Is Requested To Study Pardons

The Fulton grand jury yesterday was requested to continue an investigation of pardons and paroles issued at the state capitol to criminals convicted in Fulton courts by Carlyle Fraser, foreman of the May-June jury, and a delegation of jurors of that term.

They asked the current jury to take what action it could to curb the Governor's pardoning power and called attention to the fact that the majority of the 14 preceding grand juries had condemned indiscriminate and promiscuous pardoning of confirmed criminals.

The delegation also urged a continued investigation of consolidation of county and city governmental functions, especially as related to taxing agencies.

Weirton Plans Appeal On NLRB Labor Order

PITTSBURGH, July 12.—(AP)—President T. E. Millsop, of the Weirton Steel Company, announced tonight an appeal to the courts will be taken from today's long-awaited order by the National Labor Relations Board in which it directed dissolution of the company's employe representation plan, and charged the company with violation of the Wagner act by use of "terrorism" and "labor spies."

The board refused to recognize the complaining CIO steel workers' organizing committee as the collective bargaining agency for the company's 12,000 employes in Weirton, W. Va., and Steubenville, Ohio.

Kutz Company, Union Sign Pact

Signing of an agreement between officials of the M. Kutz Company and the Millinery Workers' Union yesterday brought peace again to Atlanta's millinery labor front. Previously two other millinery firms had signed similar agreements with the labor group.

Negotiations for the pact were handled by Alfred Gossett, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades; Max Zarisky, international president of the union; Guy Blalock, president, and Howard W. Sims, secretary, of the Kutz company.

Chicago Holds E. Y. Clarke in Finance Cases

Former Klan Official Faces Hotel and Loan Charges.

Edward Young Clarke, 62, one-time grand kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan in Georgia, was under arrest in Chicago yesterday, charged with beating a $600 hotel bill, failing to pay back a $600 loan from a woman, and allegedly passing a bad check for $76 in Atlanta last December.

Wire service reports from Chicago quoted Detective Sergeant Leroy Carrier there as saying he had trailed the one-time klansman since last September on the hotel bill charge. Clarke, he said, had forestalled attempts to collect for two years by a story that he expected to inherit $3,000,000 soon. He used the same story, Carrier said, to borrow $600 from Mrs. Minta McClosky, of Chicago, promising to pay her back when his $3,000,000 ship came in.

In Georgia, Clarke is remembered as the alleged perpetrator of a $30,000 fraud growing out of the creation of an organization called "Esskaye," which he, with Mrs. Clarke, formed in several South Georgia towns in 1931. This organization, described as a "benevolent and protective fraternal order," had headquarters in Atlanta and operated under a Delaware charter.

Clarke and his wife were accused of selling membership certificates in the order, but carried it no further. "Esskaye" units were organized in Griffin, Macon, Hazlehurst, Baxley, Valdosta and Jacksonville.

Convicted and sentenced to serve 12 months by the Jesup court of the Brunswick circuit, records show that Clarke skipped bond and fled to New York eight years ago.

Fulton police had no record of the bad check charge, but their files did disclose that Clarke was indicted here in 1931 for defrauding the Georgian Terrace hotel on a $50 bill.

Clarke, it was said at Chicago, had agreed to waive extradition to Atlanta, but would be held there for complete investigation of the local charges.

Pope Pius Orders Hunt For St. Peter's Grave

VATICAN CITY, July 12.—(AP) A search for the original grave of St. Peter in the crypts under the great church named for him began today at the command of Pope Pius XII, Vatican sources said.

Workmen started digging, with Enrico Galleazzi, chief architect of the Vatican, and Bartolomeo Nogara, director of the papal museums, supervising the work. Results are expected to be announced this month.

St. Peter's body is supposed to lie in a vault under the main altar, but the exact spot of the original tomb has not yet been known.

'Color Doctor' Tangles With Georgia Law

Charge of Practicing Without a License Lodged Against Him.

Dr. P. F. Hausmann, Atlanta "color doctor" who wears red, blue, green, purple, yellow, brown, tan, orchid, pink and cerise colored clothes all the time fell afoul of the law yesterday.

In the criminal division of the civil court of Fulton county the man who brings smiles to the face of everyone who sees him, was bound over to criminal court under $1,000 bond on two counts of practicing medicine without a license.

Wearing one of his rainbow suits, Dr. Hausmann, who lives at 120 Baker street, told the judge he received his medical education in Germany and that he had "purchased a license at the courthouse which covered everything."

S. P. Fleming, who swore out a warrant for his arrest in the name of the State Medical Board, declared that he had never passed a state medical examination and was not licensed to practice in Georgia.

Two Negro women testified the doctor gave them bottles of medicine for $1 each, which he told them to "drink and apply externally," too. "It didn't do much good inside or out," they said.

A report by a state chemist on Dr. Hausmann's medicine said it was "mostly rainwater."

All this didn't feeze the "color doctor" at all. He made the bond, got out of jail and went blithely on his way. People still smiled when they saw his colorful raiment.

Howell Will Speak To Mount Gilead

Eighty-fourth annual celebration of the South Fulton County Sunday School Association will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow at the Mount Gilead camp ground.

Hugh Howell, gubernatorial candidate, will be the principal speaker. He is a former Sunday school superintendent and teacher of the St. Mark Methodist church. J. O. Stewart, president of the association, will preside. The Rev. Charles Wilbanks will read the Scripture, and Miss Margaret Campbell will give the welcome address.

A basket picnic dinner will be spread at 12:15 o'clock. The afternoon session will be an old-fashioned Sunday school singing. Walter M. Sheats, chorister, will lead, and the Grace Trio, the Chattahoochee Quartet, and the Roy Wall Quartet will assist.

Jobless Payments, Placements Rise

Unemployment compensation benefits during the first six months of this year totalled $2,177,437, and 45,192 unemployed men and women were placed in jobs by divisions of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, Commissioner of Labor Ben T. Huiet announced yesterday.

Payments and placements, he said, represented a substantial increase over the corresponding period last year. Disbursements of the unemployment compensation division were approximately $600,000 greater, while jobs filled by the 31 offices of the unemployment service division increased by about 3,000.

Pullman Accused Of Being Monopoly

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—(AP) The federal government formally charged the Pullman Company and its affiliates today with exercising "monopolistic control" of the nation's railroad sleeping-car business.

In a civil suit filed against four Pullman companies and 31 individuals, the Department of Justice asked the United States district court to order cancellation of present contractual provisions between the companies and railroads and revision of the setup under which manufacturing and operation of pullman cars are allegedly controlled by the same holding company.

The action was filed under the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust statutes.

Army Orders Transfer Of 3 Georgia Officers

Army orders released here yesterday affected three Georgia officers.

First Lieutenant Philip S. Gage Jr., of Atlanta, was relieved from duty with the 29th infantry, Fort Benning, and assigned to the 7th division, Camp Ord, Cal.

First Lieutenant Elmer H. Walker, of Bristol, Ga., was assigned to the 11th infantry, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., and First Lieutenant Gordon T. Kimbrell, of Athens, was assigned to the 93d antitank infantry battalion, Fort Meade, Md.

Victim of Feud Succumbs to Shot Wounds

S. U. Slaton Is Held in Death of Ernest Brown.

A bill of indictment against S. U. Slaton, 69-year-old Palmetto farmer, probably will be presented to the Fulton grand jury Tuesday in connection with the death yesterday morning of Ernest Franklin Brown, 22, one of four persons shot in a family feud in south Fulton last week, attaches of the solicitor general's office said.

Brown was wounded in the mouth and chin by a shotgun blast, officers said. He died at Grady hospital.

Three others wounded, Brewster and Prentice Turbyfield, members of the family with whom Slaton was feuding, and William James Mobley, an onlooker, were reported in good condition at the hospital.

Slaton is being held in Fulton tower without bond and officers said that the charge to be made against him probably would be for murder.

He fried buckshot at the Turbyfields and Brown when they threw rocks at his house, county police said.

Brown is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown, and a brother, H. M. Brown, of Palmetto. Funeral arrangements will be announced.

Anything that anyone will buy can be sold through a Constitution Classified Ad.

Plan To Assist Counties Urged By Talmadge

Advocates Aid by Letting Them Maintain the Highways.

Eugene Talmadge, candidate for governor, carried his campaign to Baxley yesterday, where he advocated a plan for helping the financial condition of counties by letting them maintain the highways.

"We can help the counties out of a great deal of their financial difficulties by giving them road contracts," he asserted. "The state has five times as much road machinery as it needs and we ought to give the surplus to the counties and let them maintain the highways. They can do this work cheaper than the state can."

He deplored the trend toward county consolidation and promised that if elected he would use the weight of his administration to stop it.

"They are using the starvation method," he said, "to make the people want consolidation, and they will accomplish it if something is not done now to restore the counties to their proper place in our government."

Meanwhile, United States Attorney Lawrence S. Camp said he was not interested in "anybody's campaign for governor" in answer to reports that the Democratic Council of Georgia might support Talmadge. He said he was no longer connected with the organization, of which he was founder and one-time president.

Special Deputy Charged With Beating Man

Fulton Grand Jury Indicts Watchman at John Hope Homes.

A special Fulton deputy sheriff was indicted by the grand jury yesterday on a charge of assault with intent to murder a Negro man he accused of trespassing on the grounds of the John Hope Homes on Peters street June 30.

He was T. D. Smith, deputized by Sheriff J. C. Aldredge to be watchman at the low-cost housing project for a private construction company.

Witnesses before the jury yesterday, who included Dr. W. T. Hunnieutt, pastor, and W. B. Teague, businessman, were understood to have testified Smith beat Robert Taylor, Negro, over the head with a pistol and then shot at him several times on the sidewalk near the Hope Homes.

A week ago, Taylor was bound over to the criminal court by Judge Luther Z. Rosser upon Smith's accusation that the Negro committed assault and battery.

Sheriff Aldredge said that Taylor, who was sent to Fulton tower June 30, had to be taken to Grady hospital several times for treatment. He suffered concussion of the brain, it was said.
